$41,000 BANK ROBBERY

ASSISTANT CASHIER IS HELD

Discovery of Shortage Made by Three Bank Directors During Secret Inspection of the Books

The Stoneham National Bank is temporarily closed, with Henry A. Jones, the assistant cashier, under arrest on a charge of embezzling $41,000 in cash and securities from the bank, whose entire capital stock is only $50,000.

Jones was paid $18 a week. He has a wife and three children and an automobile. Stoneham has understood that Mrs. Jones had money of her own.

Jones was placed under arrest by a Stoneham patrolman yesterday at the instigation of the bank directors and was later turned over to the Federal authorities. He was taken to the office of United States District Attorney George W. Anderson in the Boston Federal Building today.

SORRY FOR FAMILY.

Later he was held in $40,000 bail by Federal Commissioner Hayes on the embezzlement charge. In default of bail he was committed.

The arrest of Jones followed a quiet investigation of the books by three directors, who visited the bank Monday night. One of the three, Fred E. Nickerson of Stoneham, said today that when they confronted Jones in the bank yesterday he admitted there was a shortage, that manipulations had been going on for ten years, that he did not care what became of him, but he was sorry for his family.

Director Nickerson said that Jones was bonded in $10,000 and that this bond and surplus stock would more than make up any deficiency.

ARREST MADE QUIETLY.

Up to this noontime the closing of the bank had failed to cause great excitement in the town of Stoneham, because the news apparently had not become known. The arrest of Jones was conducted quietly. The bank is located on the second floor of the Chase block on Main street, so the brief notice pasted on the front door glass had not been seen by a great many. This notice read:

This bank closed by vote of its directors, pending an investigation of its affairs.

One Man Killed in Auto Accident at Greenfield; 3 Hurt

Greenfield, June 7.—One man was killed and three others were injured when an automobile in which they were riding turned turtle today at the corner of Allen and Chapman streets.

Michael Hullman, thirty-one, who was pinned under the machine, died on the way to Franklin County Hospital. John Donovan, the driver, suffered a broken left arm and leg, and John Shea received numerous cuts and bruises. Frank Casey, thirty, the fourth occupant of the machine, suffered a broken arm and leg. All were removed to the Franklin County Hospital.

According to the police, Donovan, whose brother is an automobile salesman, borrowed the machine from Mrs. Robert Hamilton of Montague, last night. His brother sold the woman the machine a short time ago.

The party went to an outing of the Greenfield Aerie of Eagles, and it was while returning early today that the accident happened.

Asquith Takes Kitchener's Place

ENGLAND BLAMES U-BOAT

Wave of Anger at Report of Spy Plot in War Office Which Caused Kitchener's Death

London, June 7.—While Great Britain was stunned today by its greatest shock since the war began, a deeper stir came in the feeling that a forewarned German submarine sent Earl Kitchener to his death with a torpedo hurled at the warship Hampshire.

This feeling sent a wave of anger over all England in the wake of a belief that the German secret service penetrates even into the innermost councils of the British War Office.

The conviction of many is that Britain's war chief was betrayed to his death by a member of the inner circles at the War Office.

From every side have come whisperings that spies have carried to the German Admiralty the news of Kitchener's trip to Russia.

It is even thought possible that a whole flotilla of U-boats lurked in hiding for the coming of the Kitchener ship.

Premier Asquith will act as Secretary of State for War until a successor to Earl Kitchener is appointed, it was officially announced today.

England's present fear that Kitchener may have been a victim to a betrayal is even eclipsing her great grief at his loss.

If London's belief of a betrayal proves to have been the fact, it indicates a desperately hard situation for England—it means that nothing is hid from the German secret service.

To London, Kitchener's movements have been secret from the beginning of the war. Only the high officials of the War Department are supposed to have known of the war chief's mission to Petrograd; the information was withheld from all others.

THINK SHIP TORPEDOED.

It has leaked out that restrictions were placed on passengers landing at ports in the Orkney islands. Henceforth no person may land at such ports without specific permission of the military authorities.

Whether the action was taken in a vain attempt to forestall possible activity by Germans against the Hampshire is the question London is asking now.

If, as London is disposed to think, the Hampshire was a submarine's victim, it means that the German secret service knew not only that Lord Kitchener was to sail on the Hampshire, but also that he was to take passage at a port that would give the vessel a course to the west of the Orkneys.

Even the approximate time that the Hampshire would be likely to reach

Connecticut Man Accidentally Shot by Young Daughter

Meredith, N. H., June 7.—Dwight F. Borden, a wealthy resident of Greenwich, Ct., was accidentally shot by his eight-year-old daughter today while they were at rifle practice. The bullet from a twenty-two caliber rifle entered his arm, penetrated his body and came out through his back. He was attended by Dr. F. L. Hawkins.

The accident took place on the Boyden Summer estate, which was formerly owned by ex-Congressman Samuel L. Powers of Newton, Mass. The Boyden family came here about a month ago from Greenwich.

Jessie Colbert, aged eight, child of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Colbert of No. 84 Johnson street, Lynn, went to bed last night at eight o'clock and soon fell sound asleep. About 10 she awoke out of a happy dream and she thought she would get up and take a walk. So she dropped out of her bedroom window, the family being on the first floor, and began an outdoor promenade in her nightie.

About an hour later two nurses of the Lynn Hospital spied the little girl and took her to the hospital. The police were notified and Jessie was next taken to headquarters. There she told Captain William Rowe that she dreamed she was kidnaped by a "lovely looking man." Her frightened parents soon arrived and took her back to her cosy bed. She threw kisses to the police officers as she left the station.

EX-PASTOR FINED FOR WATERED MILK

Brockton, June 7.—Henry C. Gardner, fifty-eight, of Whitman, a retired clergyman, who runs a dairy farm, was fined $50 in court today for having watered milk in his possession. He appealed and furnished $100. City Chemist George E. Bolling told the court he found 15 per cent. added water in samples of milk taken from Mr. Gardner's wagon. Mr. Gardner denied having added the water himself, stating that it must have been added by some one who gained entrance to his barn, or else the cows spattered into the bottles while the milk was cooling.

THINKS PUBLIC PUTS CAR SERVICE FIRST

The public is more interested in service than in rates, and low fares do not bring the increase of business that results from improved and stable service, according to Robert M. Feustel, Bay State Street Railway expert, testifying before the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Feustel was being cross-examined by City Solicitor Wilbur F. Brockton on the probable effect of a six-cent fare on the business of the company.

NANTUCKET TO HAVE PHONE CONNECTION

The State Harbor and Land Commission announced today that a license would be granted to the Southern New England Telephone Company to lay a cable under the waters of Vineyard Sound. This means that for the first time Nantucket will be connected with the outside world by telephone. A hearing was scheduled for today on the subject, but as no one appeared, either in favor or opposed, the board decided to submit the matter to its engineer for a report.

SEE MAN DIVE OFF ROOF

North End People Hear Weird Shrieks as Stranger Disrobes; Dying with Fractured Skull

Standing on the ridge pole of a house at No. 61½ Thacher court, North End, an unidentified man today removed part of his clothing, plucked bricks from the chimney and hurled them at the crowd below, and then, sliding down to the gutter, dove head foremost to the street.

Unconscious, he was removed to the Relief Station, where it was said that he was dying from a fractured skull and crushed chest.

According to the police the man, who is light complexioned, smooth shaven, about thirty-five years old and 135 pounds in weight, entered the house about 10 o'clock. This portion of the building is unoccupied, the Washington street side being used by Angelo Campana, a fruit dealer. The "stranger" made his way up through the two floors of the house to the attic, and by means of a skylight to the roof.

Standing on the ridge pole he began to remove his clothing, after having attracted attention by uttering strange cries and shrieks. Startled passersby notified Patrolman Kleren of the Hanover street station, who hurried to the scene, just as the man on the roof finished stripping to his trousers.

Kleren sent for a ladder company from the Friend street fire house, when the stranger on the roof began to pick bricks from the chimney and hurl them into the throng that had gathered in the street. Before the firemen arrived, however, the man ceased his target practice and, sliding rapidly over the shingles to the gutter, stood up, and raising his hands above his head, dove to the sidewalk, nearly fifty feet below.

Latest War Bulletins

Berlin (via Sayville), June 7.—The British battleship Warspite was sunk in the naval battle off Jutland by the German battleship Konig, it was stated today by the official Overseas News Agency. The Warspite, it was said, blew up after being struck by a heavy shell. This announcement was founded upon dispatches from Kiel, the German naval base.

Berlin, June 7.—"Great Britain's supremacy of the seas has been shattered" declared Emperor William in an address to the sailors of the High Seas Fleet at Wilhelmshaven. He added that the start which the German navy had made in the Jutland battle was causing the English to fear.

London, June 7.—A. J. Balfour, first lord of the Admiralty, in a speech before the Imperial Council of Commerce today declared that the Admiralty had not withheld news of any British losses in the naval battle off Jutland. He paid glowing tribute to the late Lord Kitchener.

Grahame White's Wife Is Granted Divorce Decree

London, June 17.—A decree nisi of divorce was today granted to Mrs. Claude Grahame-White, wife of the famous British aviator.

Mrs. Grahame-White, before her marriage to the aviator in June, 1912, was Miss Dorothy Taylor of New York.

BANK OFFICIALS PLAN FIELD DAY

The annual field day of the Bank Officers' Association of Boston will be held at Riverside on Saturday. The entertainment committee, of which Richard F. Churchill is secretary, has arranged to take the guests to the grounds in a special train, running in two sections from the South Station, the first leaving at 2:15 and the second at 2:25 p. m.

The program includes a ball game between teams from the national banks and the trust companies, in which there is a great deal of interest; exhibition of water sports in the pool by members of the Brookline Swimming School; a collation, music and dancing.

There will be a moving picture exhibition, canoes and launches have been engaged, as well as the bowling alleys and tennis courts, and the grounds will be reserved for the exclusive use of the association and its guests.

The entertainment committee consists of Norman L. Adams, president, ex-officio, National Shawmut Bank; Frank W. Bryant, chairman, Second National Bank; Richard F. Churchill, secretary, Commonwealth Trust Company; Harrie I. Brett, National Rockland Bank; Arthur M. Horne, American Trust Company, and Joseph E. Scanlon, First National Bank.

DELEGATES YELL FOR TEDDY

By GEORGE T. FRYE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Convention Hall, Auditorium, Chicago, June 7.—Amid cheers and a great demonstration of patriotism, the Progressive party formally put its convention under way at 12:29 this afternoon.

There was great uncertainty as to the immediate action of the convention. Raymond Robins of Illinois presided as temporary chairman and sounded the keynote of the party in a carefully considered speech.

Mr. Robins got a mighty ovation as he came to the stand. When Victor Murdock announced the selection of Mr. Robins the convention instantly rallied in. Johnson of California, Straus of New York and Parker of Louisiana, were named to escort Mr. Robins to the chair, and then at the Murdock suggestion the whole convention joined in singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and the great body proceeded to its regular business.

Mr. Robins said just before the convention was called to order that he and many of the rank and file of the party will be ready to accept Justice Hughes on one condition.

The condition, he said, was that Hughes declare himself on the question of preparedness and American ism.

"We know how he stands on economic and social problems," said Mr. Robbins. "He meets our views on these subjects.

"What we want to know is how he

POLITICAL TRIANGLE REVEALED

Chicago, June 7.—The Republican National Convention at 1:28 today adjourned to reconvene at 11 o'clock tomorrow.

By A. BRISBANE.

Chicago, June 7.—The band is playing and the convention is supposed to open now. At the end of the big building the musicians are hung in a sort of cage, high up on the wall. They are to supply patriotic fervor.

At the other end is the platform for the speakers, with a sounding board suspended from the ceiling. Back of the platform are galleries and at the top a large oil painting of Abraham Lincoln with a black necktie and a worried expression. He seems a little out of place in this atmosphere of Elihu Root, Theodore Roosevelt, Judges Hughes, corporations and modern methods.

Twelve thousand people are in the building. The main floor is given up to the delegates sitting in little groups, each under a sign about as big as an automobile license number showing the name of the State.

There are various rows of galleries and banks of seats. Every inch of space is filled. A bad panic or fire would destroy a considerable number of local Cromwells.

For all these people, delegates and others, the world today is a big political triangle. One angle is at Oyster Bay, another angle on the Supreme bench at Washington, and the third angle here in Chicago—this one is a very acute angle for Theodore Roosevelt and others who cling desperately to the hope that the Mayflower may be their yacht for the next four years.

The band has stopped. It played

REPORT FIGHT WAS OVER MONEY MATTERS

State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and his brother, Washington Cook of Sharon, came to blows today on Somerset street in front of the City Club. Before they were separated the auditor had been backed up into a narrow alley and given a severe beating. Later Washington Cook said: "I backed him up the narrow alley between the City Club and the Elks Home and gave it to him good and plenty." It is reported the fight was over financial matters.

WAITE APPEALS WITH RELUCTANCE

s given point on the course may have been known to the Germans.

Naval experts at first inclined to the mine theory to explain the sinking of the Hampshire, but it is now pointed out that the speed with which the craft sank hardly bears out the mine theory.

Heretofore, ships which have hit mines have usually been slow in sinking—slow certainly when compared to the rapidity with which the Hampshire went down with all on board.

DOUBT MINE THEORY.

The populace generally doubts the mine theory, and the public feels that a torpedo from a submarine sank the Hampshire.

There has followed from the great wave of anger a criticism that possibly the government has again blundered and that in the first place Kitchener should not have been permitted to depart upon a mission so fraught with dangers.

The Archangel course has been generally known as full of perils, and it is recalled that a number of ships sailing to that Russian port have never been heard from.

In view of this fact, there is a tendency to criticise the authorities for letting Kitchener leave, even if Czar Nicholas did request the trip.

The death of Kitchener is the second great blow to Great Britain in a week, the first being the fearful news of the naval battle in the North Sea.

This second blow is admittedly serious. Kitchener was the one outstanding personality in whom the people placed their faith as a great man, despite attacks upon him.

King George has ordered all officers of the army to wear mourning for the great war chief. A memorial service will be held on St. Paul's.

CABINET CONFERS.

There was a conference of the cabinet today to discuss the situation brought about by the sudden death of the war secretary.

The question of Lord Kitchener's successor was one of the chief topics. The two names most conspicuously mentioned were those of Sir William Robertson, chief of staff of the British army, who was designated as acting War Secretary in the absence of Lord Kitchener; David Lloyd-George, the Minister of Munitions, and Lord Derby, who was put in charge of the recruiting when that burden was taken away from the War Office.

King Orders Army To Wear Crepe For Kitchener

By International News Service.

London, June 7.—The King commanded that the following order be issued to the army:

The King has learned with profound regret of the disaster by which the Secretary of State for War lost his life while proceeding on a special mission to the Emperor of Russia.

Field Marshal Lord Kitchener gave forty-five years of distinguished service to the State, and it is largely due to his administrative genius and unwearying energy that the country was able to create a place with he field armies which today is upholding the traditional glories of our empire.

Lord Kitchener will be mourned by the army as a great soldier who, under conditions of unexampled difficulty, rendered supreme and devoted service both to the army and the State.

His Majesty the King commands that the officers of the army shall wear mourning with their uniforms for the period of one week. Officers are to wear crepe on the left arm of uniform and of great coats.

It is believed that the total dead in the destruction of the Hampshire will be nearly 700, as the sea was so rough that the small boats launched after the explosion could not live.

Ever since Monday night the Admiralty has been making search off the Orkney Islands for the bodies of Kitchener and his staff. Patrol boats have scoured the coast and search parties have combed the sea.

American View Points to Spies

By International News Service.

Washington, June 7.—German secret service efficiency today is pointed to by Department of Justice officials as the cause of the sinking of the British cruiser Hampshire with Lord Kitchener and his staff on board, and as the reason the high sea fleet allowed the British fleet with such disastrous results for the enemy off Jutland on May 31.

These two events have resulted in American secret Service officials laying plans for a careful study of the secret intelligence systems of the European belligerents, it was learned here today.

Department of Justice and other officials have already learned a great deal about the European methods by close observation and information gained through foreigners formerly employed by the foreign Secret Service agencies. Drastic changes in American methods are already being contemplated as a result.

Death Serious Blow to Britain, Say U. S. Experts

By International News Service.

Washington, June 7.—Ranking army and navy officers are agreed that the death of Earl Kitchener, British War Minister, will be a serious loss to Great Britain and her allies.

These officers minimized the military effect of Kitchener's death. The most disastrous effect, they said, would be on the morale of the British troops, who idolized Kitchener and held him up as their ideal of the British soldier.

Secretary of War Baker would make no public comment on the death of Earl Kitchener.

Among the army and navy officers there was widespread discussion and there were many expressions of regret on the event which was described by one of the highest officials as "perhaps calamitous."

RAISED VOLUNTEER ARMY.

The consensus of military opinion was that General Kitchener's chief work was completed when he raised England's volunteer army, the largest ever voluntarily recruited.

From this point of view they said Great Britain was in a position to stand the loss of its military chieftain much better than before conscription was adopted.

Only two names were suggested by these officers as approximating the requirements of the situation, Sir William Robertson and Sir John French.

One officer said:

I think the first choice, and probably the successor of Lord Kitchener, is Sir William Robertson. When England prepared an expedition into France, he was made quartermaster-general on the staff of Sir John French. He has had the situation, therefore, at his fingers' ends, and his selection as quartermaster-general indicates the opinion of his government of his executive ability.

FRENCH IS NAMED.

The chances of Sir John French, I think, are good, but in order to realize him as Minister for War, there must be some changes in the the internal policies of Great Britain as affecting the military establishment.

These two men are far ahead in military calibre of any that now hold positions in England.

The British Embassy had no reports during the day supplementing the brief cablegram from Sir Edward Grey announcing the loss of the Hampshire with Lord Kitchener and party on board.

Kitchener Sailed at Czar's Request

London, June 7.—An official statement just issued here says that Earl Kitchener was to have discussed important military and financial questions with Emperor Nicholas.

Earl Kitchener was going to Russia at the request of the Russian Government. He intended to land at Archangel and visit Petrograd, and probably go to the Russian front. His mission had chiefly to do with the supply of munitions for Russia.

The Earl expected to be back in London for the reopening of Parliament on June 20.

Wood Calls Death of Kitchener Great Loss

New York, June 7.—Major-General Wood, Commander of the Army of the East, gave out the following statement on the death of Lord Kitchener:

The death of a man like Lord Kitchener would be a great loss to any nation. He proved himself a man of the highest type, and in many fields of endeavor, embodying both the solution of military and administrative problems.

I knew him personally but rather slightly. I am, however, familiar with the records of his accomplishments, and consider him one of the greatest men of his day.

GREECE READY TO HELP GERMANY

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special to International News Service and London Telegraph.

Paris, June 7.—The cession of Fort Ruppel by the Greek government to Bulgaria and the subsequent advance of King Perdinand's troops in Greek Macedonia reveal the real intentions of those who are now swaying the destinies of the Hellenic people.

I have received important informa-tion from a trustworthy Athenian source that the first object of the Bulgar-Germans and their abettors in Greece is to oust the allies from Salonica. The problem has now passed from the domain of diplomacy to the military sphere.

The Court and the military party are resolved to persist in their attitude of unbefriend opposition to France and Britain, for they believe in the invincibility of the Teutons and are ready to help the Teutons justify that belief.

BROWN ATHLETE KILLED AT YPRES

London, June 7.—Sergeant Florence J. Price, star athlete of Brown University and former New York newspaperman, is dead in the trenches at Ypres.

For four months the athlete, who once starred on the gridiron and track for Brown, had dared death daily while throwing hand grenades and charging the Germans with the Canadians.

Then, on Memorial Day, soon after his captain had informed him that his ambition to attain a commission would be realized within a few days, a shrapnel shell burst in the dugout where he was peacefully sleeping. He was killed instantly.

Republican Machine Bars Nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, Says W. R. Hearst

The Machine Would Like to Nominate Root, but Will Probably Consider Safety First and Compromise on Hughes—Says Hughes Will Out-Wilson Wilson.

By W. R. HEARST.

Chicago, June 7.—To understand the determining conditions in the Republican convention, which will assemble in Chicago today, it is necessary first to understand that the control of that convention is absolutely in the hands of the Republican Old Guard, so called.

There are two main reasons for this situation. The first reason is the fact that a rebellion against a machine only occurs after a machine has been in power and has demonstrated its iniquity.

When a party has been out of power the hostility to the machine among the mass of voters subsides. The memory of its evils fades and the machine is likely to recover its control.

The second reason is the fact that the progressive element of the Republican party, the faction opposed to the Old Guard, has conducted its campaign against the machine aimlessly and ineffectively, without skill, without system and without complete and convincing sincerity.

The power and the forces of the Progressives have been divided by Mr. Roosevelt's very obvious determination to return to the Republican party.

If Mr. Roosevelt had inspiringly declared his continued devotion to progressive principles and his determination to lead the Progressive party in this campaign in an unselfish and patriotic fight for principle, he could doubtless have retained the independent Republican voters in his party and could have added many independent Democratic voters.

But Mr. Roosevelt made plain to his followers and to the public generally that it was his intention to desert the Progressive party and return to the Republican party.

He therefore not only failed to secure Progressive recruits from the Democratic party, but he put it into the minds and hearts of a large number of his Progressive supporters to follow him out of the Progressive party back into the Republican party.

Thus the Progressive element of the Republican party is a helpless minority and part remaining outside of the Republican party in an equally helpless position.

Under such conditions, the Republican Old Guard acquired complete control of this Republican convention without any special dread or danger of Progressive element, either within or without the party.

The control of the convention, therefore, by the Old Guard, is complete, and the question before the convention is not what the Republican machine can do, but merely what it may want to do or what it may dare to do.

One thing is absolutely certain, and that is that this Republican machine will not nominate Theodore Roosevelt as the candidate of this Republican convention for the President of the United States.

This definite determination not to nominate Mr. Roosevelt is due partly to the machine's dislike of Mr. Roosevelt and partly to the disbelief of the practical politicians of the machine in Mr. Roosevelt's ability to win the coming election.

It is possible that if the Republican machine politicians were convinced of Mr. Roosevelt's ability to carry the election, they would swallow their dislike of him.

It is also possible that if the Republican machine politicians were wholly devoted to Mr. Roosevelt personally they would take a chance on his being able to carry the election.

But neither liking him nor believing in his present popularity, there is not the slightest possibility of the machine's allowing this Republican convention to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the presidency.

The question then arises, which one of the remaining candidates will the Republican machine—in complete control of the convention, mind you, nominate.

In this situation the natural inclination of the Old Guard must be modified by their dread of the consequences. They would like to nominate Root or some equally reactionary candidate, but they do not dare to do so.

Root is too well known ever to be elected, and some of their other candidates are too little known ever to be elected.

Under the sum of these circumstances, the man who comes most prominently to the front and seems generally available is Hughes.

Hughes has the peculiar political advantage of being THOUGHT to be a Progressive by the confiding masses and of being KNOWN to be a reactionary by the privileged classes. He is, therefore, likely to get the votes of the one and the contributions of the other and thus may be triumphantly elected.

Hughes, moreover, has the special oratorical faculty of being able to utter high-sounding sentences which please the public, but which mean nothing in particular and therefore offend nobody in particular.

Hughes, too, is a man who talks engagingly of reform without even performing any vital act of reform. And this is wholly in accord with the public taste and temper.

The people like to hear reforms advocated, but they resent having reforms put into practical operation. There will be no candidate before the country, not even Mr. Wilson himself, who can be counted upon to talk more and do less than Mr. Hughes.

Therefore, the availability of Mr. Hughes as an opponent of Mr. Wilson is obvious. He will out-Wilson Wilson and possibly defeat Wilson at the polls.

Mr. Hughes' recent declaration of principles before a young ladies' seminary was a shining example of his capacity for glittering generality and for dazzling and dazing ambiguity that will turn Mr. Wilson sea-green with envy.

With Hughes as nominee, there is only one contemplated disaster to the Republican program, and that is the nomination of Roosevelt as the candidate of the Progressive party.

The Republican leaders have fully considered this possibility, but their freely expressed opinion is that Roosevelt has not the courage to lead this forlorn hope, and that no other man as a Progressive candidate would poll enough votes to defeat the Republican ticket.

LAWSON CONTINUES BATTLE FOR ROOSEVELT OR M'CALL

By JOHN T. LAMBERT,
Political Editor Boston American.

Chicago, June 7.—Thomas Lawson will stick his finger in the Presidential pie today. He hopes to extract a Roosevelt or McCall plum.

The Dreamwold litterateur is on his way here to serve as publicity manager for a McCall campaign.

He is coming also to take a parting shot at the fast-fading candidacy of Mr. John W. Weeks of Newton.

Mr. Lawson has prepared an elaborate booklet setting forth the availability of the Massachusetts Governor for President. A thousand copies of the booklet were secretly loaded aboard the Chicago Special in Boston, and, since the arrival of the Massachusetts delegation, have been secreted in the Congress Hotel headquarters of Charles Stanley Baxter, the McCall campaign manager.

In this booklet Mr. Lawson refers to Mr. Weeks as "Stock Gambler John." He put the Junior Senator in the Presidential class with Jess Willard and Ty Cobb.

It was Mr. Lawson's intention to distribute his "Path Pointer" among the delegates who assemble today in their first formal sessions.

The cane-carrying journalists tell us that Roosevelt, McCall and all others are out of the running and that Mr. Justice Hughes will be nominated on the second ballot, so it may be that the Boston financier will decide not to pry the lid off the box that holds his morocco-bound booklets, which are at once a marvel of printers' skill and the most expensive document of publicity yet attempted for a Presidential possibility.

It may well be, therefore, to see that the views of the Lawson booklet are aired. In this booklet Mr. Lawson discusses some of the possibilities as follows:

Henry Ford—But for the fact that Barnum preceded the the devil Moses of the Lakes, the Tinker of Michigan would have a splendid chance of election.

If his ambition had confided itself to jiu-jitsuing his million-a-minute income, instead of baleing him to the supreme supervisorship of Heaven and its suburbs, he would now be well in the lead in the presidential marathon. Now it is an even bet that Michigan Moses will have to wait until 1920 before garaging the White House.

Charles W. Fairbanks—It's too bad Congress cannot establish some sort of new office to take good fellow, ex-Vice-Presidents like "Cocktail Charlie" out of the way of reckless automobile drivers who never do seem to know ex-Vice-Presidents from other highway hikers. If 1916 were a wet year, the genial ex-Vice-President would have the call.

Estabrook, DuPont, Knox—In all the sporting events there are certain entries good for the purpose of filling the also-ran holes.

Willard, Cobb, Weeks—Unhappily for these three specialty artists, the 1916 contest is for the Presidency of the United States.

CRACKED-LIPPED GRINS.

If it were for the prize ring Jess would have them all beaten to a solar-plexus knockout.

If for the fan, "Union" Ty would make the plate without a slide.

And if the contest were for the presidency of the stock exchange, Stock Gambler John would have all the contestants skun to a sure thing finish, but why make cracked-lipped delegates grin?

Burton—His career shows presidential qualifications, but it also shows an uncertainty of election that would bring a ten-point break in the stock market the day following his nomination. And the stock market today is the truest barometer of Presidential uncertainties.

The Dreamwold financier recommends the nomination of either Roosevelt or Governor McCall. He says that with Roosevelt's indorsement Governor McCall "can swamp Wilson at the polls."

In the view of the lineup for Hughes it seems that Mr. Lawson's campaign of publicity may be interesting if unavailing.

Moosers Spoiling for Fight, Declares Bryan

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1916, by William Jennings Bryan.

Chicago, June 7.—The convention seems destined to open without an explosion and without any violent change in the program as mapped out by the leaders.

There is plenty of dynamite here, but the men with the money have so far refused to furnish fuses. There are Progressives who are spoiling for a fight, and whose love for the regular Republican organization is not deep enough to make them feel much concern about its return to power with a reactionary program.

But these men are not the ones who furnish the sinews of war. It will be remembered that it required a lavish expenditure of campaign funds four years ago to precipitate the Roosevelt sentiment which the party hold in solution. It has not cost so much this year to get up a Progressive convention because few contests were made in the regular organization.

But a campaign for the election of their candidates would be an entirely different matter. It would be a great humiliation to Colonel Roosevelt to become an independent candidate again and poll a smaller vote than he did in 1912, and he could not hope to make much of a race without liberal financial support from his friends.

These friends are too deeply interested in overthrowing the Democratic administration to encourage a division which would be sure to spell defeat.

Unless something unexpected develops, therefore, the Roosevelt boom will not break its tether. The Democrats would be very glad to see two Republican tickets in the field, because it would make their campaign work easier, but the Republicans, especially those who control, understand the meaning of two Republican tickets just as well as the Democrats do, and this is the one thing that their hearts are set on avoiding.

The convention will give an opportunity for fireworks and they have staged the program that the pyrotechnics begin at once. Senator Harding will open the convention, this dispatch is necessarily written before the session begins) and his speech will not disappoint those who like eloquence and invective.

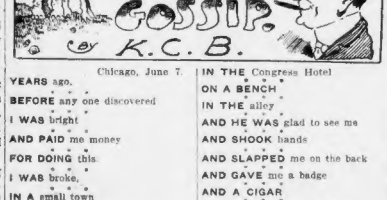
He is a Republican of the strictest sort and what he will say about the Democratic party will be enough. He is an orator of great ability and this occasion furnishes such an opportunity as comes to few men. Some expect him to make so profound an impression on the delegates as to place himself among the presidential possibilities. We shall see.

Youth, Romance, Tragedy

These are the elements in the Orpet trial, soon to get under way after the tedious task of picking twelve jurymen.

No writer today is better qualified to analyze the emotions of youth, the warm and tender thrills of youthful romance, and the grimmer workings of the tragic muse than Dorothy Dix.

Her articles on the Orpet case appear exclusively in the AMERICAN, daily and Sunday, and an especially interesting article will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN.



Chicago, June 7.

YEARS ago,
BEFORE any one discovered
I WAS bright
AND PAID me money
FOR DOING this
I WAS broke,
IN A small town
AND HAD an inside room
IN THE town hotel,
AND COULDN'T get my baggage,
OR GET away,
OR anything,
AND I knew a man
WHO HAD money,
AND I WENT to him
AND CRIED
AND TOLD him about it,
AND ALL he gave me
WAS ADVICE.
AND I quit crying
AND TOLD him
THAT SOME day
I'D LAUGH last
OR BEST,
OR WHATEVER it is,
AND IT'S a long worm
THAT WON'T turn
AND EVERYTHING
THAT I COULD think of
AND HE WENT right on OPENING his mail,
AND I LEFT
AND NEVER saw him again
UNTIL TUESDAY morning
IN THE Congress Hotel
ON A BENCH
IN THE alley
AND HE WAS glad to see me
AND SHOOK hands
AND SLAPPED me on the back
AND GAVE me a badge
AND A CIGAR
AND ASKED me to lunch.
AND I WENT with him
AND ORDERED whole portions
OF EVERYTHING,
AND HE told me
HE WAS a delegate
FROM THE old town
AND I LIED and said I was glad
AND ASKED him to wait
AND WENT into the lobby
AND GOT Hy Mayer
WHO DRAWS cartoons
FOR the papers
AND WENT back
AND TOLD him we wanted
HIS PICTURE.
AND HY pretended
THAT HE drew it,
BUT HE didn't.
AND THAT guy
WILL BE buying
HEARST PAPERS
FOR THE REST of his life
LOOKING for it.
AND HE WON'T find it.
AND HE'LL go crazy
AND IT'LL serve him right.
I THANK YOU.

T. R. A LIVELY CORPSE, SAYS IRVIN S. COBB

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Copyright, 1916, by Central Press Association.

Chicago, June 7.—Harry Thaw got in last night. All the others were here already.

So this morning, as the saying goes, dawned auspiciously upon the Republican National Convention and upon the Progressive National Convention, and upon such other national conventions as may be going on in Chicago at this momentous period in our history.

The person who couldn't do a little Judicious shopping around here today and find a convention to suit him must be either a Democrat or a person hard to please.

AN HISTORIC PARALLEL.

You remember, don't you, the story of the green newspaper correspondent, who chanced to be on the spot when one of the worst railroad disasters of which there is record occurred near a small middle Western town.

Telegraph editors of big city papers, despairing to get staff men to the scene in time to write accounts for the next morning's edition, bombarded the fledgling Journalist with wired instructions to cover the story to the fullest possible extent. They demanded the details of the smashup and a list of dead and wounded. They wanted interviews with the survivors and statements from the railroad officials. In short, they wanted every bit of news pertaining to that horror and wanted it quick.

The cub reporter took it all in, point to point. He talked with this person and that, and made hundreds of notes. And then along about 12 o'clock at night he sat himself down and he fired this memorable message over the wires to waiting editors in newspaper offices, East, West, North and South:

"All is confusion. Owing to the excitement I can send nothing."

MAKE OWN CALCULATIONS.

That man would have found a congenial assignment for himself here in Chicago this morning. There was enough excitement and confusion to have satisfied even his journalistic instincts. But for all this tumult and the shouting and the hallyhooing and the braying and the booming and the blaring, these main carpital facts stood out clearly:

This being Wednesday, June 7, this is the day of the Republican National Convention. Tomorrow being Thursday will be the second. Friday will be the third day. Saturday will be the fourth day, if there is any fourth day.

With these principal sentiments of truth in his hands, the reader is invited to make his own calculations as to everything else.

ANY GUESS IS GOOD.

One man's guess ought to be as good as another man's guess, if not better.

At this stage of the proceeding it is pretty much all guesswork, any way. It may be that some astute leader knows what is going to come off, but he is not handing out the details for publication just yet, preferring, I suppose, to save them up as a pleasant surprise.

Any seventh son of a seventh son, wherever in the Union of States he may be located, who can forecast exactly what is going to come to pass later on this week in the matter of a Presidential nomination, can confer a great favor upon a vast number of Americans who are assembled in Chicago, and at the same time can relieve the suspense for a large and constantly growing collection of favorite sons and dark horses by wiring in his information, collect.

Speaking personally, I should very much like to know about it myself. Not knowing, I shall carefully avoid making any prognostications. It is better to admit ignorance beforehand than to have to confess it afterward.

At an early hour this morning it was stated that all things were in readiness to begin. The badges had been distributed and the tickets had been issued.

KEYNOTER KEYED UP.

Senator Harding, the official keynoter, was reported to be in a high and complete state of key-notability. The acoustics of the Coliseum had been tried and found in working order. The private acoustics of the orators who are waiting for a chance to emit a few burning truths from themselves did not have to be tested, because they have never been known to be in other than the most perfect condition.

The Southern delegates, some of whom had come by way of Canada, looking like Northern delegates, and the Eastern delegates, many of whom could pass anywhere for Western delegates, and the Western delegates, who wear not the leather chaps, neither do they adorn their skulls with the rough-rider hats, breakfasted early in order to make sure of being in their places when the bell sounded.

As Kin Hubbard remarked, some of them who had stayed up late last night and had been very careless in the matter of mixed drinks, didn't patronize the restaurants. They went across the street to the drug store for their breakfast.

PLATFORMS INTERCHANGEABLE.

It wasn't hard to get advance information touching on the platform which is to be adopted. Indeed, this promises to be a great year for interchangeable platforms.

The Republicans this week are going to come out for preparedness. The Democrats next week are going to come out for preparedness. The Republicans are going to say a little something about the tariff—but probably not very much. The Republicans are going to deplore the war in Europe. The Democrats are going to deplore the war in Europe. The Republicans are going to point with pride to themselves and view the Democrats with alarmed aversion. The Democrats are going to point with pride to themselves and view the Republicans with alarmed aversion. You can shut your eyes and take your choice.

AS FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

But when it comes to the nominee of the convention for the Presidency —well, ask something easy. As for the Vice-Presidential nominee, nobody apparently has given that a thought as yet. Late last night the name of one gentleman was in certain quarters mentioned in connection with the Vice-Presidential nomination, but the object of this slander completely denied it. He said he was satisfied to be a private citizen, but he was eternally and tee-totally dad-gummed if he was going to take a chance of being elected Vice-President and becoming absolutely anonymous.

These few remarks would be incomplete did I fail to make mention of a shadow which hung over the domed roof of the convention hall during the early forenoon. In fact, it had been hanging there ever since I reached town. I do not refer to the weather, which was rainy last night and continued to be threatening this morning. The particular clou which I have in mind answered to the name of T. Roosevelt.

TO BURY T. R. COLONEL.

Nevertheless, some of the old-line stalwarts refused to be downcast. I heard one regular of the regulars remark that the principal object of this convention was going to be to bury the Colonel.

Maybe he was right, but in closing I wish to say timber.

At least four times in my recollection the Colonel's political enemies have sent out invitations for his funeral, but each time the crowd that gave forth the obsequies was disappointed owing to the failure of the corpse to attend.

Colonel in Merriest Mood at Oyster Bay

By International News Service.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 7.—Convention day found Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in one of the merriest moods of his whole career. His face was wreathed in smiles and he joked with those about him. Neither the uncertainty of developments in Chicago nor the heavy rain storm that drenched Sagamore Hill and filled the bay with a thick fog could lessen the colonel's gaiety.

Special telegraph and telephone communication had been linked between Sagamore Hill and Chicago and the colonel was early in his library to receive reports from the scene of political action.

It was reported that several long messages had been received from George W. Perkins, the national chairman of the Progressive party, during the night, but whether these had anything to do with Colonel Roosevelt's joviality was not apparent.

Asked about over-night rumors, the colonel dismissed them with the words:

"They are just reports. That's all I can say for them."

The colonel persistently refuses to be interviewed on political topics, but from other sources it was learned that he may be persuaded to head a third ticket if Justice Hughes is nominated.

It is uncertain whether or not Colonel Roosevelt will go to Chicago, but he is primed for the trip, and if he feels that his presence is needed there he will make the jump.

Committee Praises Retiring Officers

By International News Service.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 7.—National Chairman Charles D. Hilles was paid high tribute today at the closing session of the Republican National Committee just preceding the opening of the convention.

Resolutions praising his "wisdom, self-sacrifice and absolute fairness," were adopted by a standing vote of the committee. Other resolutions praising the service of Secretary James R. Reynolds, Sergeant-at-Arms Stone and Treasurer George R. Sheldon were also adopted.

The final business transacted by the committee was the formal acceptance of the tardy West Virginia delegation and the placing of the members on the temporary roll. Acting Chairman Burke of South Dakota then rapped his gavel sharply on the table and the meeting closed.

THAR'S some things we have to learn to like—such as olives an' hard work. Thar's others we take to naturally—such as baseball games an' VELVET.

America Not Too Proud to Fight, Declares Harding in Keynote Speech

Senator Harding's speech, as temporary chairman of the Republican Convention, was in part as follows:

Gentlemen of the convention, the first and foremost wish in my mind is to say that which will contribute to harmony of effort and add to the assurance of victory next November. I wish that because we believe the republican success to be for the best interests of our common country. The allied hosts of the believers in Republican principles are in a vast majority in this country—when the bandages of harmony are unfurled. We have witnessed the comeback of our party in various states. We have seen the re-enlistment of those who believe in Republican doctrines, and victory has followed and rejoicing has attended. No apology has been asked, republican success to be for the best to forswearing required. This is not the time for recrimination, it is the day of reconsecration.

Recalling that the mightier forward strides have been taken under a half century of Republican control, after we led in fixing the indissoluble ties of Union, the retrospection, the contemplation and the anticipation combine to fill the Republican breast with pride and hope, and trust and faith, and magnify our obligations in this crucial hour of our national life.

Much of the discussion of the hour is hinged upon a world at war. We need not wonder thereat, because the enormity of the conflict and the influences of its horrors have set mankind in upheaval. The traditions of civilization have been broken, and international laws have been shattered. There is a tidal wave of distress and disaster; there are violent emotions and magnified fears. There are the extremes of incalculable sacrifices and unmeasured new fortunes—not all American. There are new wonders and new hindrances in commerce, changed balances of trade, new marvels in finance and utterly changed economic conditions. There have attended embarrassments in our foreign relations as difficult as those which the individual citizen experiences whose every neighbor is involved in deadly quarrel. Everything is abnormal except the depicted condition of the federal treasury, which is characterized by remarkable control, and the facility of the administration for writing varied notes without effective notice.

UNARMED AMERICA.

Amid these conditions has stood this unarmed giant, typifying the American republic, neutral and sane, to whom the neutral nations have turned for leadership. Our national unselfishness had been proven, our devotion to humanity had been established, our committal to international justice had long been proclaimed. The world had previously heard the voice of American fearlessness, and all the conditions single us out for leadership among the neutral powers, but the administration at Washington spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize what the warring powers soon came to know, that the official American voice lacked the volume of determined expression that once demanded international heed, and we lacked the strength of confidence in our own defences.

FOR NATIONAL DEFENCE.

Perhaps it is a reminder more than a discovery, but there has come to us a conviction that this great nation, rich in resources and strong in patriotic manhood, has been negligent concerning its own defence. We have dwelt in fancied safety than real security. Pride impels us with regret in this, because it suggests the mind of a nation so free from intended offence that there was no cultivated thought of needed defence. Our righteousness of purpose is portrayed in our trust in unarmed safety. But there is a warning in bleeding Europe, and there is call today for prudent, patriotic and ample national defence. There is no mistaking the sentiment. We are not thinking of the hysterical; we need not be moved by a preparedness which is partisan in conception. We need not believe in a defence propaganda inspired by those who are to wax fat in the production of arms and munitions, because there is no need. I deplore the teaching that an anxiety about our national defence is inspired by greed. We rejoice in free speech and untrammelled opinion, but patriotism is ill promoted by the impeachment of false motives, and aimed at those who believe in defence or those who doubt its wisdom. Such a teaching is the reproach of citizenship, which may develop a worse peril from within than from any enemy without.

Though we do not pretend to be exclusive in our devotion, we Republicans believe sincerely and earnestly, in adequate national defence. We have always believed in an army as invincible as Andrew Jackson might as John Paul Jones builded in our freedom's earliest fight. We have in mind a protected commerce on the waters and a seacoast secure in strong naval defence. We were building to high rank among naval powers when the Democratic party interrupted, and we subscribe to the reforms it committed now, because of a new realization of the envy which our wealth and our commerce invite, and a new appreciation of our commanding place in the affairs of the world. I shall not say that it is enough to have the greatest navy in the world, but noting the elimination of Germany and the passing of our one-time isolation, we ought to have a navy that fears none in the world (and can say that) is only anywhere spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize what the warring powers soon came to know

Brisbane Pictures Today's Triangle of Roosevelt, Hughes and Chicago

"America, I Love You," which admirably represents the non-committal, neutral attitude of Mr. Hughes, who, it is supposed, will be nominated.

There are many here to report the day's doings for you who read this newspaper.

Nell Brinkley and Dorothy Dix are sitting side by side in the front row of the press gallery. Nell Brinkley is anxiously looking for pretty girls—the only things that interests her.

Here comes "The Star Spangled Banner" from the band. Everybody is standing up, and one faint cheer. This would have been the time for Roosevelt to walk in, grinding his teeth and breathing patriotism. It is a mistake for him to stay away.

Nell Brinkley as we said, looking for pretty girls, has found one, and is just now much relieved making a picture of August Belmont's wife sitting with her husband and Mrs. Wolcott in the best gallery seats.

Somebody important is coming, the photographers are busy and the police are trying to make the people sit down.

It turns out to be somebody not very important.

Nobody listens while he talks. It is the sergeant-at-arms saying all aisles must be cleared.

Dorothy Dix is saying that with three million women voting Mr. Hughes' whiskers are a political mistake, for women do not love men with whiskers. Nell Brinkley says "That's so," and she knows.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT.

Dorothy Dix says: "Outside of this building there are about twenty million women in the United States. At least nineteen million of them are worried about just one thing, the high cost of living. Why do these men talk or think of anything else until they have settled that problem?"

"That's so," says Nell Brinkley. "I never thought of that," and she probably never did, for she is one of the earth's artistic orchids and never saw a cook stove.

Somebody says "The audience will now rise and sing 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee.'" The audience is now singing it, and it is 11:30. Having sung one verse pretty well, the band starts the second verse, but nobody knows that, and everybody is humming.

While they sing you may observe our humorous genius, Tad, who will show you the thing in pictures. He says from his heart, "I hope it will be Roosevelt. I want to hear them holler."

The Rev. John Timothy Stone, D. D., is praying and reading his prayer, so that it is no longer news where it is going.

A good many in the audience do not know what he is saying, as he cannot be heard, except occasionally, when he says very loud "Thy holy will," or "We bow before Thee."

Today the prayer is by a Protestant, tomorrow it will be by a Catholic. Politics is neutral, and they should have also a rabbi to represent those who gave up the religion that we preach and don't practice. s z

HARDING ANNOUNCED.

Some of those who listen to the prayer probably ask themselves:

"What is the Being or the Force to which this prayer is addressed? How much does it care for this little earth, one of thousands of millions controlled by the same power? How much does the ruling power care about this Republican convention? What is the Republican convention; has it any importance at all in life in general, or is it an effect, a pimple on the surface of civilization, no important since it lived?

"Everybody please turn this way," somebody says. There is a flash and the Republican convention is officially photographed as a whole. An individual is rapping and talking unheard.

"Somebody announces as temporary chairman, Harding of Ohio. This is the name of a candidate, the first to be mentioned. Those who have been promised something if he gets in cheer for three sounds.

"About 4,000, judging by the noise, seem to have been promised something. Now a committee is named to escort Mr. Harding to the platform. There is a gentleman from Idaho, and Mr. McKinley from Illinois.

Mr. Harding, the first candidate exposed to the naked eye, is now on the speaker's platform. He walks out in front of the others upon a small seperate platform, roped in with red velvet cord. He wears a black cutaway coat, very dark trousers and high stiff white collar (very bad for the pneumogastric nerve). He is ready for anything, wedding, funeral or nomination.

In his left hand he holds a manuscript and waves his right hand above the big head. The first words that you hear are "The vast majority of our American people:" then you hear "Typify our American faith;" then "Our American citizenship," and then "Will be confirmed overwhelmingly at the ballot box." His right hand goes far behind his back, swings up in front and you hear, "This country is praying for Republican relief," and then "The public conscience."

LAUGHS, THEN CHEERS.

You decide that you need not listen to any more, but he says: "The Republican party did not do very well at harmony the last time we met. Let us make amends and forget our differences in a united endeavor to restore the country."

The crowd laughs, then cheers and you continue to listen, thinking that he may say something after all.

Now he is pathetic and is saying something about "the imperishable soul" and "sixty years ago." He may be talking about Lincoln. This candidate Harding, the first to be unveiled at this gathering of political nymphs, is a good-looking man, of the McKinley type, but healthier and stronger in appearance. He has an appealing Ohio accent. Now he gets his first big yell, saying "We ought to be so prepared today as Washington urged." Roosevelt would recent "stealing of his stuff," if he were here.

You see clearly that Mr. Harding of Ohio is not troubled in his mind by the vision of Dorothy Dix's nineteen million women worrying about the high cost of living. He thinks that everything would be all right if the Republicans would come back to power.

Just at this moment the crowd is really cheering, because he has mentioned "The Immortal Abraham Lincoln." Tad, who lacks reverence, says: "A fat chance Abraham Lincoln would have if he came in here and asked for something. They would tell him to go out and get a haircut."

After talking twenty minutes Mr. Harding reaches this: "We have seen elemental man develop." Tad says: "They ought to be warming somebody up for this guy." He explains his cryptic saying as follows: "You know when a ball pitcher gets rotten they warm up some other guys to take his place, then pull him out and put the other guy in. That's what they ought to do with Harding."

GENTLE PLATITUDES.

Now Mr. Harding says: "Our purpose is portrayed in our trust in our security." It is apparent that he is a perfectly safe and sane candidate. Plain also that if he should be chosen, which he will not be, his gentle flow of platitudes will stand not the faintest chance against the infinitely superior article wit which Mr. Wilson would overwhelm him.

(Mr. Brisbane's account of the convention as it progresses will appear in later editions.)

PROGRESSIVES CRY 'WE WANT TEDDY'

stands on Americanism and preparedness. If he will come out with a good strong statement in which he eliminates the hyphen, I for one will be with him, and many of the rank and file are of the same frame of mind."

In his speech as presiding officer Mr. Robins said, in part:

"To our brothers in spirit, especially in the Republican party, let us speak plainly. In 1912 many old ties were broken. Men who had comraded were willing in part and suffer defeat rather than submit to what they felt were intolerable wrongs.

"Absence from the lesser wrongs of brother to brother must be sunk to meet a common enemy of the household. In this day, with the more names of Republicans or Democrats or Progressives should divide those who are brothers in loyalty to the principles of Americanism now imperiled by alien ambition in other lands and alien thinking here at home. We believe that the need and opportunity of the time is such that personal differences, partisan bitterness and local prejudices would be surrendered to serve the nation's good.

"Well we would solemnly warn all those of an easy and accommodating political virtue that we will not surrender principle nor make unworthy compromise to gain a meaningless and selfish political victory. We would rather face possible defeat fighting for our cause than to seek assured victory through betrayal of reason to those high principles and heroic souls that combined to make the second party of this nation in 1912.

CHOICE UP TO G. O. P.

"The 4,269,000 voters who followed our leader and espoused our cause can be augmented to a majority perhaps more easily under united banners, but if need be the Progressive standard will go forward alone. We cannot believe that a rule or rain faction will dominate the political machinery of the historic party of Lincoln, and that they will prefer personal defeat and national degradation to accepting of the foremost leadership in the nation.

"But in this day and hour it should be made plain that the choice is in their hands and that the judgment of the people will be upon their heads."

Mr. Robins spoke strongly in favor of universal training for military service. He praised Theodore Roosevelt as the ideal leader called for by the times. He reaffirmed the Progressive demands for social justice. He condemned a hyphenated citizenship. He declared for woman suffrage.

TRIBUTE TO FLAG.

From the very jump the convention was a fervent tribute to the flag.

The Stars and Stripes waved in a mad riot of red, white and blue. At the back of the stage the national coat of arms was surrounded by a great sheath of flags. Great flags flanked the sheath. Two monster flags made up the side walls of the stage.

"The Star Spangled Banner," the "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Rally Round the Flag," "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue," and "It's a Grand Old Flag," had been vibrated into the atmosphere by an early coming and interesting band.

The first delegates to enter the hall, were from the New York delegation. Closely following them came the vanguard of North Dakota folk. Then the hall began to fill.

From the extreme left a man from Michigan delegation entered with a great Roosevelt banner. It was the first picture to show in the hall. Instantly there arose a cheer. For answer to the applause the delegation stood and sang, "Oh, You Teddy, We're Going to Put You There."

The bulk of the New York delegates came swinging down the aisle, singing as they came.

"When Teddy Comes Marching Home," was their marching song.

On the other side of the hall the delegates stood and joined in the song. Soon it rolled from one side of the big building to the other. Cheer after cheer followed the song.

"Roosevelt, Roosevelt, Roosevelt," shouted the delegates, now under full enthusiasm and steam.

NOISY SALUTE FOR TECHNOLOGY BARGE

The big Technology barge Bucentaur, which will be one of the leading features in the pilgrimage of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to its new home on the bank of the Charles in Cambridge, from its half century old home in Boylston street, arrived in Boston today in tow of a Gloucester tug. Whistles on craft in the harbor welcomed the novel boat, which is built after the fashion of the ancient Greek galleys, and is highly ornamented.

MAYOR CURLEY BACK FROM WASHINGTON

Mayor Curley today returned from a brief trip to Washington. To the reporters who greeted him he said the feeling was in Washington that General Wood would be nominated by the Republicans.

ROOSEVELT CASH SHY IN WALL STREET

New York, June 7.—Odds of 3 and 4 to 1 against Roosevelt for the Republican nomination were offered freely in Wall street with no takers. Supporters of Hughes wanted better than 9 to 5 against their man, contending that the correct price should be at least 2 to 1 against him.

Held for Beer Theft.

James L. Driscoll, twenty-one, of Yeoman street, Roxbury, was held in the Roxbury Court today, in $1,800, charged with the larceny of a pint of beer, valued at fifteen cents, and a beer "can" valued at twenty-five cents, from Patrick Sheehy of Adams street.

ACCUSED OF ASSAULT ON INSANE PATIENT

Brockton, June 7.—Charged with assaulting Julius Arnold, seventy, a patient in the insane department of the Bridgewater State Farm, Frank Bing, thirty, an attendant, was in court today. A plea of not guilty was ordered and the case was continued until June 9. The assault on Examiner A. E. Paine.

charge is technical. Arnold died a minute after the scuffle with Bing. Ossification of the heart valves is given as the cause of death by Medical Examiner A. E. Paine.

FIND NEW CLEW IN MELROSE MURDER

Important new evidence in the Wakelin murder case in Melrose was discovered today by the AMERICAN, tending to prove that Loretta Wakelin was frightened by a man who called on her way home from school, some time before the murder was committed.

This evidence was given by Edward Krishfield, a truck gardener, who lives at No. 42 Swain's Pond avenue. Krishfield, who speaks but little English, has not been questioned by the police, although he was working in his garden near the road on the day of the murder.

"I saw the little girl about 9 o'clock, or perhaps a little before," he told the AMERICAN. "She was at the bend of the road, crying loudly. She had one hand in her face. I think she was frightened. I said to her: 'What's the matter, little girl?' She stopped crying a minute and looked at me. Then she began to cry again, louder than before. She went down the road toward the ice house.

"I didn't see anyone else until a long time after, when automobiles went by. I heard that the little girl had been murdered."

"Tootsie" Wakelin reached her home about 9 o'clock and secured the schoolbook which the teacher had sent her for. As far as is known she made no complaint to her parents of having been frightened.

It is believed that the child was met on her way home by someone who knew her and who, after frightening her, allowed the child to go home after admonishing her to say nothing about the meeting. Later, when the little girl was on her way back to the school, it is thought that this same person waylaid her again and taking her into the woods murdered her.

Mrs. Mary Hosley, who has stated that she saw Joseph Wakelin, father of the child, in the road after he had looked in the well, today retracted and declared that she did not see him. This bears out the statement made by Mr. Wakelin.

Summons were issued today from the Malden [illegible] for a large number of persons [illegible] the woods section who are wanted as witnesses to testify at the inquest which is to be held by District Attorney Corcoran tomorrow.

Pathological features made public today gave an entirely different complexion to the murder.

The backing of the body was severe, but the small amount of blood that flowed from the lacerations and scratches and their nature convinced the officials that they were made for deception, either as the child was breathing her last or immediately after her death from strangulation.

The tell-tale marks near the windpipe showed plainly the manner of death. The fact that the more pronounced mark was on the left of the child's neck indicated that it had been made by the thumb of the slayer's left hand, who used the right hand to gag the child.

ASSAILANT RIGHT-HANDED.

This shows the murderer to be right-handed. The new line of deductions likewise automatically disposes of the theory that bran or breakfast cereal was stuffed into the little girl's mouth and nostrils as a gag to stifle her cries and hasten death.

Close scrutiny with a magnifying glass of the nearly particles taken from the victim's mouth, today showed that the substance was unquestionably a popular breakfast cereal, and that it had every appearance of having been in the stomach.

Its whitened, somewhat inflated appearance indicated this. The popular idea in official circles now is that the child purged from the mouth while being strangled and that the hand that muffled its cries, held back the purging.

TENDS TO CLEAR BOYS.

This hypothesis is said by officials to coincide with late evidence unearthed, and to further eliminate the boy suspects who are now no to be the background as to be virtually out of the murder inquiry.

Interest was quickened when District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex county took charge. It was he who ordered the inquest which will get under way at 10 tomorrow before Judge E. Leroy Sweetser.

And Now "Lampy" "Rags" the Words of "Fair Harvard"

"Lampy" is the limit! He has gone the chap one better who set the air of "Fair Harvard" to ragtime. He has "ragged" the words themselves, rewriting the lines to fit a syncopated measure.

"Lampy" is the Harvard Lampoon's pet name for himself. Recently the Harvard Regiment Band jarred the academic atmosphere by playing "Fair Harvard" to ragtime.

But "Lampy" now publishes in its current issue an Irving Berlinized version of the words on the cheerful theory that "rag" melody should have "rag" words.

The first stanza of the original "Fair Harvard" reads thus:

"FAIR HARVARD" (REAL).

Fair Harvard! thy sons to thy jubilee throng,
And with blessings surrender thee o'er,
By these festival rites, from the age that is past,
To the age that is waiting before.
O relic and type of our ancestors' worth,
That has long kept their memory warm,
First flower of their wilderness! Star of their night!
Calm rising thro' change and thro' storm!

But here is the way "Lampy" rewrites it for "rag measure:"

"FAIR HARVARD" (RAGTIME).

Come on along, come on along, to the Sons of Harvard's toll,
Give away the blessings,
Festive rights confessing,
From the dead ones past to live ones in the fall.
You're a type and a relic of our father's worth,
You've kept our memory warm, ta, da,
You're their wild little lily,
You're their shining little star,
Up! Up! Way up there, calm through the change and the storm.

Mrs. G. D. White Refused Decree for Separation

Judge George in the Probate Court today refused to grant a decree to Mrs. George D. White, wife of a member of the Accidents, giving court sanction to her living apart from her husband.

Mrs. White admitted that when she married White, her third husband, January 4, 1915, she knew that he was unemployed, but she said that she expected that he would be made a member of the Boston Excise Board. She told the court that he had kicked and slapped her, and on July 7 of last year threatened to blow her brains out with a revolver and club her with the butt of the gun.

White testified that he returned from the trip of the Accidents at Richmond and that he went to their arms and then home. He said that his wife asked him if he came directly home to her. He told her he did and he stated that she threw a match box at him and called him a liar. They grappled, he said, and she fell to the floor, striking her head against a chair.

He told the court that she proposed marriage to him, although she knew that he was not employed.

Judge George dismissed the petition.

British Fired Two Volleys Into Body of Irish Editor

Dublin, June 7.—The prosecution has opened at the court-martial of Captain Bowen-Colthurst, charged with the shooting of F. Sheehy Skeffington, editor of the Irish Citizen; Thomas Dickson and Fred McIntyre, during the recent Irish rebellion. The defendant is accused of murder.

The prosecuting officer said the defendant took the three men from the guard room with the remark: "I am going to shoot them, and I think it is the right thing to do."

Officers testified that they had been on duty seventy-two hours at the time of the executions and that the accused was extremely excited and did not act in his usual manner.

One officer said that after the shooting he noticed a movement in Skeffington's body. When he told the captain of it, he said the latter ordered the squad to shoot again. A second volley was thereupon fired into the body.

It was testified that the accused told Major Rosburgh, in command of the Portobello Barracks, that he had shot the men on his own responsibility and probably would hang for it.

HOLD STONEHAM BAN KMAN AS EMBEZZLER

FORMER COUNCIL PRESIDENT.

He is a "native son" of Stoneham. He entered the bank fifteen years ago and worked up to clerk and assistant cashier. He married a Woburn girl and set up a home in Woburn for a few years following his marriage. He was elected to the Woburn city council for three terms on the Republican ticket, and was president of the council in his final term.

Four years ago he moved back to Stoneham, where he and his family were welcomed in local society.

He is finishing the term of Columbian Lodge of Odd Fellows in Stoneham.

The Stoneham National Bank was established twenty-five years ago. The present officers are:

President, W. D. Brackett; vice president, C. H. Drew; directors, C. H. Rich, William H. Emmons, C. W. Tuttle, F. E. Nickerson and Cashier C. A. Bailey.

JUDGE STEVENS DIRECTOR.

Director W. B. Stevens of the bank is Judge Stevens of the Massachusetts Superior Court.

Fred E. Nickerson of Stoneham, one of the three directors who made the secret examination of the books Monday night, said today:

"The bank has been run hard of late. Results were not what they should have been. We have been doing more business than ever before, but the results were not apparent."

Monday night Mr. Nickerson and two of his fellow-directors, Charles F. Buck and Charles H. Drew, went to the bank without saying anything about their purpose to President Brackett or the other directors. They began an examination of the books.

Continuing his story, Mr. Nickerson said:

"We found something wrong—a shortage apparently being due to manipulation of the accounts of Assistant Cashier Jones. We were unable to find from a cursory investigation the exact amount of the shortage, but there was enough to justify our suspicions.

CONFRONTED JONES.

"The next day (yesterday) we confronted Jones at the bank with our evidence. He appeared surprised at our discovery, but made no attempt to deny it. He was apparently the coolest man in the room. He admitted the shortage. When questioned he said that it had been going on perhaps for ten years. He appeared very cool and said: 'I don't care what becomes of me, but I am sorry for my family.'

"The talk with Jones lasted until late in the day. Then Jones was placed under arrest by one of the Stoneham police. He was taken over to Boston last night.

"Jones has been under $10,000 bonds. I do not think there is any great cause for alarm. I think that, with the amount of Jones' bond and the sale of our surplus stock, we can more than make up our deficiency.

"Jones told us: 'I will be able to return some of it.'

"The shortage was probably accomplished by manipulation of accounts and cash extraction. We have a card system of accounts. Some cards could be removed and the remaining cards could be made to balance. When the accounts had been audited the missing cards could be replaced.

"We confronted Jones the first thing in the morning. We went in the bank. I approached Jones and said: 'Your balance sheet and deposit cards ought to agree.' He said they should.

"I asked: 'Do they?' He said: 'Yes.' "I said: 'Well, now, let's call off some of them and see.' While Mr. Buck stood looking over Jones' shoulder, to see that he called off the amounts correctly, Jones called the amounts on several cards and I took the figures down.

"After this had been done we totalled them and, on comparing them with the balance sheet found a discrepancy of $22,000. Then I said to Jones: 'How do you account for this?' He said he could not account for it.

CONFESSION IS CLAIMED.

"After more questioning Jones admitted that he embezzled the money and that his embezzlement extended over a period of some ten years. We notified the bank examiner and Jones was arrested."

Director Nickerson said today that, in addition to its yearly examinations by a national bank examiner, the books were given a yearly audit by an expert employed by the bank; also that the accounts were balanced monthly.

While the directors' preliminary examination is said to have disclosed a shortage of $22,000, the amount named in the court complaint is $41,000. This was said, in the report of court proceedings, to include cash and securities. But one of the directors said that the securities had been examined and had been found intact.

The first known publicity of the developments was when Jones appeared in the office of United States District Attorney Anderson today with Special Agent Schmid of the Department of Justice.

When Schmid was granted an embezzlement warrant by Commissioner Hayes, Jones was removed to the office of United States Marshal Mitchell and placed under formal arrest by Deputy Marshal Condon. In the time he was arraigned and was held in $40,000 bail for a continued hearing on next Friday, June 9.

Meanwhile the Stoneham National Bank had been taken in charge by National Bank Examiner Currier. The doors were closed at 7 o'clock yesterday afternoon as usual, but were not opened today.

The examiner's notice was pasted on the door, while the examiner and Cashier Bailey went over the books.

BOSTON MAN STRUCK BY LAWRENCE TRAIN

Lawrence, June 7.—While crossing the tracks at the Ballardvale station of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Edwin Belcher of Boston was struck by a train bound for Lawrence. Belcher's skull was fractured and he also received internal injuries. He was placed on the train and taken to South Lawrence and removed to the general hospital. His condition is serious.

HOLD POLICE OF LAWRENCE FOR ETTOR RIDE

Lawrence, June 7.—City Marshal Maurice F. McKenna, Lieutenant Charles R. Vose and Inspectors Charles E. Woodcock and Patrick J. Morrissey of the Lawrence police department were called to plead in court today to a technical complaint charging kidnaping of Joseph J. Ettor. The I. W. W. leader waived examination and were held for the September sitting of the Essex County Grand Jury under $500 bonds each. Rampaport, a bellboy at the Hotel Needham, was held in $100 as a witness.

Ettor came into court accompanied by his counsel, Attorneys John P. Feeney and Thomas G. Connolly of Boston. Attorney John F. Kane, counsel for the police officers, announced that they would waive examination.

Today's proceedings were an aftermath of the action of the Lawrence police officers in arresting Ettor early on the morning of May 15. Ettor came to Lawrence on the day previous, which was Sunday, in response to a call from the seventy-five striking workers.

Crippled and Orphan Children on Annual Outing at Nantasket

More than 1,700 crippled and orphaned children, sheltered in various institutions of Greater Boston, started at 9.30 today on their yearly outing by automobile to Nantasket Beach provided by the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association under direction of Secretary Chester I. Campbell.

Over 400 automobiles, owned by members of the association or loaned by owners outside to that organization for this kindly purpose, were required to give every child a seat.

This annual auto treat for the crippled and orphaned "kiddies" is regarded by those in charge of the unfortunate little folk as one of the most blessed activities on the calendar of kindness.

It gives a whole day of sheer, unadulterated joy for the children, who look forward to it with all the impatience of childhood, especially when under the restrictions that some of them endure.

It is a big task for the association, and particularly for Mr. Campbell, upon which all the endless detail falls of securing cars, getting the children, providing for their fun and, above all, seeing that nothing out of the ordinary happens to his manifold charges.

After some three weeks of planning arrangements were completed for the start today. The automobile fleet went out in twenty divisions to as many collecting points where the children were picked up.

The general start was from Secretary Campbell's headquarters, No. 5 Park square, at 9.30. There was no attempt to make a parade of the cars and children. As fast as each division returned from its collection point to Park square it was started away on the long, gay ride to Nantasket Beach.

LUNCH AT BEACH.

Arrangements were made by Mr. Campbell to have lunch for all served at the beach, also for plenty of popcorn and "sweeties" for the youngsters, to say nothing of a full supply of noise making devices, which every child must have for a regular "automobuff" outing.

WORCESTER WOMAN KILLS SELF BY GAS

Worcester, June 7.—Mrs. Louisa Augusta Stevens, sixty-nine years old, committed suicide by gas poisoning early today as the result of worrying over the illness of her husband, it is believed.

LABEL WHOOPING COUGH, SAYS DR. MORSE

"If the child has whooping cough, put upon it an arm label bearing the words: 'I have whooping cough,' was one of the suggestions made by Dr. J. L. Morse of Boston in his address at the second day's session of the Massachusetts Medical Society in the foyer of the Copley-Plaza.

Dr. Morse advised hospitals for the treatment of whooping cough and that a case should be reported along with diphtheria and scarlet fever.

"At present you can tell a child has whooping cough, when you hear the whoop," he said, "but the public should be protected in other ways than this. An arm label saying the child has whooping cough should be hand by law."

"Every house where this disease prevails should be quarantined."

Dr. Edward Reynolds of Boston criticized physicians who are using "deep dyed in the wool" methods for the prevention and cure of cancer. He said: "The public often know ways than the doctors, as they are studying the matter through publicity in the newspapers."

Believe Wilson Will Not Attempt Early Peace Move

By International News Service.

Washington, June 7.—Diplomatic leaders here today were firmly convinced that there was not now a possibility that President Wilson would make any effort at an early date to obtain peace in Europe.

The dispatch of a cablegram by Secretary of State Lansing to Ambassador Gerard asking whether Gerard had been advocating an early peace is believed to be a sure indication that the administration does not desire to have the attention of the world centred upon this country as the gate through which peace is most likely to come.

While it is improbable that any action will be taken, even if Ambassador Gerard admits that he advocated an early peace, diplomats say the Lansing inquiry has considerable significance.

The Reputation of the Maxwell

"WHAT is the bore and stroke of your motor," was asked a Maxwell owner not long ago.

"I don't know," he replied simply, "I don't buy cars on figures any more. I buy them on what they've done."

For this man, and for many others like him, it was enough that during the thirteen strenuous years the Maxwell record for performance, reliability and economy had swept it to the front.

Figures—engine speed figures, horse-power figures, wheel-base figures—they meant nothing to him. The name "Maxwell" carried more weight than all the technical description that could be offered.

Maxwell cars have achieved this great good will and this priceless position with the public only by their unequalled record of things done. What is said of an automobile in its specifications is one matter. What the car actually does in the hands of owners, year after year, is another matter.

The Maxwell car has won its position through sheer merit. It has set record after record in competition with cars of all prices and classes.

Everything considered, the Maxwell is the safe investment. It is a known, tried and proved product. It will serve you as it is serving and has served countless others.

Let us arrange for a demonstration today. You will be under no obligation. We want to give you a chance to convince yourself.

OPENS QUARANTINE TRANSFER FIGHT

Washington, June 7.—At the request of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Congressman George Holden Tinkham appealed to the House Appropriation Committee to restore in the sundry civil bill an item calling for an expenditure of $150,000 for the purchase by the Federal government from the city of Boston of its quarantine stations. This transfer was agreed upon last year at the urgent request of government officials and the price fixed by official appraisal. The bill at present provides for a "donation" of this property to the Federal government by the city.

CHEER MERRY FRIARS' BAND ON PARADE

Tastefully draped in long linen dusters, set off by blue collars and cuffs, the frolicking Friars descended upon Boston shortly before noon today for their annual matinee at the Boston Opera House.

Preceded by a platoon of mounted police and escorted by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and the Fusilier eVteran Association, the Friars marched to the music of their own band through streets crowded with a cheering multitude.

The Friars arrived by special train at the South Station at 11:15. Grouped in expectant attitudes awaiting their arrival, were Mayor Curley, a delegation of leading business men, representatives from the Hotel Men's Association, the local Theatrical Managers' Association, the Boston Athletic Association and other organizations.

The Mayor gracefully presented the visitors with the freedom of the city, which was as gracefully accepted for them by Abbot George M. Cohan, who carefully placed it in his grip.

FLAG FOR GEORGE COHAN.

The Friars, 130 strong, formed outside the station, the rank gave a few preliminary toots, Dr. J. Victor Wilson, the marshal, gave the word and the parade started.

First appeared the mounted police, followed by Mayor Curley, Jerry J. Cohan and George Primrose in automobiles, the latter two being chiefs of the organization. Then came little "Buster" Collier, son of Willie Collier; the Ancients and Fusiliers, marching with the military carriage that has made them famous, and headed by Captain Fred E. Bolton and Major James Myrick, respectively, and the reception committee.

Next came the Friars' band, and last but most important of all came the Friars themselves, stepping jauntily along, with straw hats cocked at rakish angles and swagger sticks twirling merrily.

The throngs that packed the sidewalks quickly picked out well-known members, despite the disguises furnished by the linen dusters. George Cohan was easily recognized, as were Harry Levy and Burr Usher.

The parade passed through Summer street, Winter street, Tremont to Boylston to Park square, halting briefly at the Park Square Theatre. Here little Eleanor Witherstone, daughter of Vincent Fetherstone, manager of the Hollis Street Theatre, presented Abbot Cohan with a silk American flag, inscribed "To George M. Cohan, Abbot of the Friars, the favorite of Yankeland, from Selwyn & Co., Boston, June 7, 1916."

AT B. A. A. CLUBHOUSE.

From there the parade continued through Arlington and Boylston streets to the B. A. A. clubhouse on Exeter street, where lunch was served.

Before eating lunch each of the Friars was subjected to a physical examination by Dr. Corey, who looks after the health of the members on their trips. After leaving Rochester, their last stand before coming to Boston, two of the men were ordered to their homes by Dr. Corey because of symtoms which they developed.

Manager Fred E. Wright of the Park Square Theatre omitted the usual matinee today upon the request of Proprietor Arch Selwyn and the ladies of the "Princess Pat" company reported at the Opera House this afternoon instead. Here, headed by Ruth Welch, Eva Fallon, Leonora Novasio and Katherine Witchie, they were provided with programs and flowers which they rapidly disposed of to the crowds that began to flock to the theatre shortly after 1 o'clock.

The proceeds fro mthe sale of flowers and programs go into the fund raised by the Friars, and the beautiful actresses had no difficulty in selling their wares.

Between the afternoon and evening performances at the Opera House, Manager W. E. Smith entertained the Friars at the eGreorgian.

THE STROM-MORGAN BRIDAL

MISS MARY S. COOLIDGE WEDS EDWIN F. ATKINS

PHOTOGRAPH BY WHITE, BOSTON

MRS. ALEXANDER F. MORGAN,

Former Miss Helen Mildred Strom, Who Became Bride at Church Ceremony in Somerville.

An interesting June wedding was that of Miss Helen Mildred Strom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Strom, and Alexander Francis Morgan, both of Winter Hill. The ceremony at St. Anne's Church, Somerville, was followed by a breakfast for which 200 invitations were issued. Miss Ethel Strom, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Marion Strom, another sister, was bridesmaid. Daniel Morgan was best man.

Following the wymoon trip the couple will live at No. 10 Winter Hill road, Medford.

Dr. Alexander Mann of Trinity Church performed the ceremony at the wedding this afternoon of Miss Mary Shepley Coolidge and Edwin Farnsworth Atkins, Jr., which took place at the Hardboro street home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge, parents of the bride.

Miss Isabel Coolidge was her sister's only attendant. The guests were confined to the relatives and most intimate friends of the two families.

Mr. Atkins, who graduated from Harvard last year, had for his best man his classmate, Randolph Boyle of Louisville, Ky. The ushers were Charles A. Coolidge, Jr., the only brother of the bride and a junior at Harvard; Robert W. Atkins, Franklin W. Trumbull, Nicholas Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, William President, David Rives Sigourney, William H. Claflin, Jr., Morgan Brigham Phillips, Robert Winthrop Kean, Ernest Goodrough Swigert, John Cleveland Talbot, Leon Sherwood Chichester, Kent Bromley, William H. Taylor, James Brownlee and R. Cushing Hamlen.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Atkins will make their home in Belmont.

A quiet wedding, but one of widespread social interest today was that of Mrs. Reed Anthony (formerly Miss Weeks) of No. 113 Commonwealth avenue and "Rose Lodge," Beverly Farms, to Randolph Frothingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frothingham of New York.

The ceremony, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, was in St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms, and was performed by the Rev. Elwood C. Worcester of the Emmanuel Church of Boston.

Robert W. Seymour of Boston was best man. The only ushers present were the groom's parents and Miss Ruth and Reed P. Anthony, children of the bride. There was no reception. Mr. and Mrs. Frothingham will be at "Rose Lodge" during the summer.

Mr. Frothingham is a graduate of Yale and of the Harvard Law School and a member of the Boston and New York Yale clubs and the Eastern Yacht Club. He is a law partner of Henry M. Channing. On his mother's side he is a descendant of the Virginia Randolphs.

The Brae-Burn Country Club was the scene this afternoon of a delightful tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin M. Johnson of Cambridge to present their daughter, Miss Dorothy Johnson.

Miss Johnson was graduated only yesterday from the Rogers Hall School, and her coming-out party was a festival occasion for many of her schoolmates as well as the "buds" of the season. She looked very lovely in a frock of white tulle built in flesh colored chiffon trimmed with silver lace and carrying a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Johnson, in a gown of white lace embroidered net, received her young daughter's guests and succeeded in making the event a crowning joy for the pretty debutante. The clubhouse was elaborately decorated and dancing lasted through the afternoon. Mr. Johnson, the father of the debutante, is of the law firm of Johnson & North, State street.

Many Boston people motored over to Andover today for the pageant carnival that was held in the Brothers Field of Phillips Academy.

While in charge of the Historical Society, it was really a community affair and promises to become an annual festivity.

Mrs. Clara A. Putnam was the chairman. Among the features of especial interest was dancing by the pupils of Mrs. James J. Storrow's school for folk dancing.

Mrs. Charles H. Redden of Portland, Me., and Leonard C. Wasson of Brookline have announced their engagement. The wedding, which will take place the latter part of June, will be very quiet.

The annual "open house" arranged by the directors of the Boston North End Mission was held at the Mount Hope Home of Southbourne road, Forest Hills, this afternoon.

The children of the home presented an attractive program and the many friends of the institution, which is the oldest of the kind, came to share in the pleasures of the day.

TEMPLES HOLD PENTECOST SERVICES

Impressive services in synagogues and temples in Greater Boston this morning marked the observance of the first of the two-day festival of Pentecost, or the Feast of Weeks. The temples were crowded with worshipers. The floral decorations were beautiful.

Hundreds of boys and girls of the Jewish faith were confirmed in the various reform and conservative congregations in the tenets of Judaism, and accordingly become members of the House of Israel.

The observance of the Feast of Weeks began at twilight yesterday. It will end at sundown tomorrow. The festival is also known as Shavuoth. Its name is derived from the fact that it is celebrated seven weeks after the second day of Passover.

Rabbi M. M. Eichler officiated today at the services held at the Temple Ohabei Shalom, Union Park street. Cantor Wolkowich rendered the ritual. Twenty pupils of the religious school of the temple were confirmed by Rabbi Eichler.

Rabbi Herman H. Rubenovitz conducted the services at the Temple Mishkan Tefila, Copeland and Moreland streets, Roxbury. Confirmation exercises were held at the close of the services. The program included songs, recitations, essays, distribution of certificates and prizes and an address by Rabbi Rubenovitz.

The musical program was in charge of Cantor M. Magidson, assisted by choir and organist, J. Turner.

Those who received certificates weighed are Alexander, Esther Barnett, Marion Copperman, Gertrude Hoffman, Sarah Margot, Lillian Rose, Martha Solman, Rose Seaman, Leo Adelstein, Morris Hirshbach, Leonard Marcus, Albert Michaels, Percy Prizker, Leo M. Sonnabend and I. Sonnabend. Memorial services for the departed will be held tomorrow morning.

At the Adath Jeshurun Synagogue, Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, Rabbi P. Israeli conducted the services. He spoke on "The Service of Jewish Leadership."

How to Heal Skin-Disease

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. These are not at all expensive. With the Resinol Soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the Resinol Ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. Sample free. Dept. 30-B, Resinol Baltimore, Md.—Advertisement.

Most War Babies Are Boys

Is this merely nature's way of filling the gaps left by the men on the battlefield?

Such a theory is interesting; but Dr. Woods Hutchinson gives you the true explanation—in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

ESCAPED HOSPITAL INMATE SOUGHT HERE

A general alarm has been sent out by the Worcester police for John J. Reynolds, an inmate of the Worcester State Hospital, who has escaped. Reynolds lives on School street, Brookline, and it is thought that he might attempt to get there. He is sixty-nine, five feet five inches tall, has blue eyes, brown hair and a brown mustache.

He was dressed in a black suit, blue and white striped shirt, tan shoes, and wore a straw hat.

Can Thoughts Be Photographed?

The holiest and wisest of books says: "As a man thinketh, so is he."

Thought lies hidden in the human brain—and it holds the secret of personality, the real self of every individual, the record of the past, and the intention that shapes the future.

Now comes science, reaching far into the dim mystery of human mind, and says that Thought can be photographed—that the most secretly hidden deed can be recorded on a sensitive plate, and held up for the world to see.

You can witness it all in the seventh episode of the "Mysteries of Myra," where Payson Alden, quick-brained and keen-eyed, draws on his immense scientific knowledge and procures startling evidence in this way from a disguised member of the Black Order.

Jean Sothern as Myra Maynard

Allen Murnane as Arthur Varney

Every episode pictures with dramatic power some new psychic marvel — some startling exhibition of the power of mind. There are breathless adventures—amazing turns to the absorbing picture-story and that world-old battle between Good and Evil, with Love as the prize.

NEW RAID WOULD PUT CARRANZA TO THE TEST

Washington, June 7.—Secretary Lansing declined today to indicate when reply would be made to the Carranza note demanding the withdrawal of the American forces from Mexico.

In the event of another raid into Texas, which General Funston is reported to have said he fears, the situation will be more hopeless than ever before. Officials declared today that the good faith of Carranza as to his purpose in putting down outlawry on the border may now have a real test.

With warning in advance that Luis de la Rosa and his bandits are heading toward the Laredo district to raid and plunder, the Carranza officers now have an opportunity to show what they can or will do. If the threatened raid is carried out officials said it would demonstrate absolutely Carranza's inability or disinclination to control the bands of Mexicans bent on harassing the American border.

CHAPPED HANDS AN AWFUL SIGHT

Sore, Red and Rough. Continually Cracking Open. Could Not Put Them In Water At All.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was troubled with chapped hands which first started from exposure to the air. My hands were sore and red and rough and were continually cracking open and bleeding. They were so sore I could not put them in water at all nor even sweep the floor. They were swollen and an awful sight and I didn't want anyone to see them.

"I noticed Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and I sent for a sample. The same seemed to do so much good that I bought more, and after I had used two bars of Cuticura Soap and one and one-half boxes of Ointment my hands were healed." THE BEST THING FOR DYSPEPSIA

WHY PEPSIN, PANCREATIN, ETC., SO FREQUENTLY FAIL.

An international specialist whose articles on stomach troubles have been printed in nearly every language, recently stated that to treat the average case of stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., by doctoring the stomach, killing the acids with opiates, or by the use of artificial aids to digestion such as pepsin and pancreatin, was just as foolish and useless as to attempt to put out a fire by throwing water on the smoke, instead of the fire. He claims, and facts seem to justify his claim, that nearly nine-tenths of all stomach trouble is due to acidity and food fermentation; and that the only way in which to secure permanent relief is to get rid of the cause, i.e., to neutralize the acids and stop the fermentation. For this purpose he strongly recommends the plan now generally adopted throughout Europe of taking a teaspoonful of ordinary bicarated magnesia in a little water immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. This immediately neutralizes the acid, stops the fermentation and prevents the stomach from its work in a normal manner and thus by removing the cause, enables nature to quickly restore the inflamed stomach lining to a perfectly healthy natural condition. For the convenience of travelers it may be noted that most druggists are now able to supply bisurated magnesia in 5 grain tablets, 2 or 3 of which will almost instantly relieve the most violent attacks of indigestion.

Villa's Torture Methods

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks ruled higher in New York by noon, but the big gains were mainly by specialties or usually inactive rails. Railroads were stronger as a class, improving in the second hour. The list in general had been irregular during the morning.

Gains at 12 o'clock included Railway Steel Springs 1⅜, International Harvester 1¼, American Smelting 1¼, U. S. Smelting 2, United Fruit 1¾, Baldwin 3, Crucible ½, Willys-Overland 6½, Canadian Pacific 1⅜, Southern Pacific ¾, Atchison ¾, Reading 1⅜, New York Central ¾, Union Pacific ¾, Norfolk & Western 1¼, Louisville & Nashville 1¼, Illinois Central 2 and U. S. Steel ½.

Among declines were American Can ¾, Car & Foundry ¾, Distillers ¾, Maxwell 1⅜, Studebaker 1⅜, Chandler 2½, Industrial Alcohol ¾, Kennecott ¾ and Marine preferred ¾.

In Boston Gulf common sold at its highest price so far this year. Gains here included Alloues ½, Butte & Superior ¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅛, Granby ⅝, Quincy 1½, U. S. Smelting 1⅜, Gulf common ¾, United Fruit ¾ and Ventura ⅜.

Among declines were American Can ¾, Car & Foundry ¾, Copper Range ¾ and Winona ⅜.

At the opening in New York the majority of active stocks showed small gains and the market was narrow. As less specialties became active, including Marine issues, U. S. Smelting and Crucible, the Westerners sold at their high record price. There was less interest in minor car shares. All of the Willys-Overland advanced 6⅛ and then gained a point more. Coppers and railroads were irregular. Trading was of about the same volume as previously this week. It was professional. Interest is centred upon the Chicago convention. Speculators are awaiting results there.

In Boston the market began dull and firm with U. S. Smelting and Gulf issues the features. The latest Quincy quarterly dividend is $4 a share, an advance of $1.

Copper metal is in less demand, it is stated. In London spot was unchanged, futures were off $6 and electrolytic was unchanged. Spot tin and futures were up $1 10s, with Straits $.1 higher. Lead quotations advanced 5s. Spelter quotations declined $3.

B. & M. MEN CONFER ON WAGE DEMAND

A committee representing Boston & Maine car shop workers in Billerica were in conference with Boston & Maine Railroad officials in Boston today relative to an increase in wages. The men want four cents an hour increase. It is understood the road is willing to give them two cents, and that a strike will be avoided. The demand affects also Concord, N. H., Lawrenceville, Vt., and Somerville car shops.

Woman Suffrage Defeated.

Des Moines, Ia., June 7.—Returns indicated today that woman suffrage has been defeated in Iowa by a majority of from 5,059 to 10,600. Only a few more counties are to be heard from. Ninety-two counties rejected the constitutional amendment by a majority of about 5,000.

FRENCH CHECK NEW ASSAULT AT FT. VAUX

London, June 7.—After a brief lull in infantry fighting east of the Meuse River, the Germans have again launched a powerful assault against the French position at Fort Vaux, the gateway to Verdun on the northeast.

Despite the fury of the attack, it was repulsed by the French forces under Major Raynal, the French War Office announced today.

The attack, which was made last night, was preceded by a bombardment by German guns which is described in the communique as extremely violent.

All day yesterday and last night the big guns of the Germans west of Meuse were in action, raining shells of all calibres against the French position at Hill 304 and the Caurettes Wood. In the Vosges the Germans are again very active in the sector of Hartmannweilerkopf.

All of the French positions in that region were subjected to a furious cannonade last night. This was taken as a prelude to infantry assaults.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"West of Somme two German patrols which attempted to cross the Aisne were dispersed near Postoge. Our artillery fire destroyed several observation posts of the enemy near Neuvron.

"In the Argonne at La Fille Morte we blew up three mines with success.

"On the left bank of the Meuse there was heavy artillery fighting on the sector of Hill 304 and in Caurettes woods.

"On the right bank a powerful German attack delivered about 5 o'clock last night against Fort Vaux was repulsed by our machine guns. The enemy fled in disorder, leaving many bodies upon the ground.

"The artillery fire was very energetic on both sides.

AUSTRIANS CHECKED ON ITALIAN FRONT

London, June 7.—The Austrians are still being held from further advances by the Italians, according to Rome. In the Vallarsa and Posina sections and on the front between the Posina and Astico Rivers violent Austrian attacks have been checked, and the Italians have gained some ground against the Austrians on the western slopes of Monte Cengio.

BRITISH LINE AT YPRES SET BACK

London, June 7.—The British line east of Ypres front was set back during very heavy fighting. The War Office, however, states that the general line is still intact.

CZAR CAPTURES 25,000 MEN IN NEW DRIVE

Special to International News Service and London Telegraph.

Petrograd, June 7.—The great Russian offensive continues to "develop successes," to quote the Russian War Office modest statement.

Previously the number of Austrian prisoners on the Galician front was given as 12,000, and "a number of guns."

The latest official statement gives the prisoners as "450 officers and more than 25,000 men," and the number of cannon taken as "twenty-seven guns and more than fifty machine guns."

This Russian advance is another of the Russian surprises of the war. Notwithstanding the tremendous number of men and the extent of the line—225 miles from the Pripet to the Rumanian frontier—the offensive has taken the public completely unaware.

The element of secrecy has contributed materially to the success with which the operations were begun. At the same time, the Austrians seem to have got wind of the final preparations of the Russian move, and the multiplying attacks of the Germans on the Dvina are interpreted as attempts to create a diversion in the interest of the Austrians.

It is stated that the Austrians have on this front about forty infantry and fifteen cavalry divisions, or more than half their total army. This has the support of a couple of divisions of Germans.

HOLM LEA OPEN TO PUBLIC TWO DAYS

The public is invited to visit Holm Lea, the Sargent estate in Brookline, Saturday afternoon after 1 o'clock, and all day Sunday. The rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants are in flower.

Holm Lea can be reached from Perkins street, Jamaica Plain; Chestnut place and Warren street, Brookline, and by foot path on Chestnut street, Brookline, close to the cars of the Cypress street line of the Elevated. Transfers from all Elevated lines to Cypress street can be obtained in Brookline Village. Automobiles, carriages and bicycles cannot be admitted to the grounds.

BERLE WILL STUDY IN BRANDEIS OFFICE

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., of Cambridge, the Harvard prodigy, who has been graduated from the Harvard Law School at the age of twenty-one, with a degree of Bachelor of Laws, plans, after passing his bar examinations, to enter the law offices of Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, with which Justice Louis D. Brandeis, the new member of the United States Supreme Court, is associated.

WAR SUMMARY

Paris makes official report of continued night attacks by the Germans on the French position at Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun. The latest attack, according to the French communique, followed a furious bombardment. The advance of German troops was repulsed, the statement says. Teuton gunners continue violent shelling of French positions west of the Meuse and in the Vosges.

Dispatches from Ottawa indicate that the Dominion is being prepared for announcement of severe losses among the Canadian troops in the Sanctuary woods battle on the Ypres salient. The list of officers killed now totals 180, and the Canadian Militia Department is informed that these are not all. The losses in the ranks are merely conjectured, but a heavy casualty list is feared.

Petrograd announced yesterday the capture of a total of 13,000 prisoners in the new Russian drive. A later communique from Petrograd now boosts that number to 25,000.

Rome reports the checking of a series of Austrian attempts to advance.

SAYS GIRLS WILL WEAR NO GARTERS

Newport, June 7.—A local shoeman says that the shortage and high cost of crude rubber is one reason for the style in hosiery changing so that garters may be discarded by simply rolling the tops of the stockings. He facetiously cites that rubberings has been the cause of the shortage in skirts, and predicts that the ladies will now more than ever turn from the millinery to the shoeman to win the approval of the men and the envy of their women friends as the spring and Summer styles in shoes are captivating.

Missing Suncook Boy Drowned.

Suncook, N. H., June 7.—Eight-year-old Lionel Pareneau, who disappeared from his home yesterday morning, was found by a searching party floating in the Suncook river, dead.

FATHER OF SEVEN KILLED BY CAVE-IN

Lowell, June 7.—Alfred Theibault, forty-one, a laborer, was instantly killed by the caving in of a supporting wall at the picker plant of the C. S. Dodge cotton mills here. Alexander Jasmin had a narrow escape, leaping aside just in time to save his life. Theibault leaves a widow and seven children.

DEATH OF AVIATOR STEPHEN McGORDON

Newport News, Va., June 7.—Aviator Stephen McGordon, who recently made a record flight of 400 miles to New York in four hours, carrying a 200-pound passenger, died today from burns received in an accident.

The Fireman Is Protecting YOUR HOME and FAMILY!

Who Is Protecting HIS?

Mr. Businessman and Mr. Citizen, in reply to Chamber of Commerce statement, do you know that Boston firemen are on duty 96 continuous hours out of 120 hours?

Do you know that 17 cities in the United States allow their firemen a night and a day shift?

Do you know that the cities of Chicago, Ill., St. Louis, Mo., Dayton, Ohio, and Schenectady, N. Y., grant their firemen a day off in three?

Do you know that Cleveland, Ohio, Detroit, Mich., Denver, Col., Des Moines, Iowa, and Scranton, Pa., grant their firemen a day off in four?

Don't you think the firemen of Boston are entitled to more time off with their wives and children, after reading the above time allowed firemen in other cities?

United States "Balanced" Tires

One of the Five is Yours

No one tire will fit every motoring need of use and price.

That is why the United States Tire Company makes five tires—

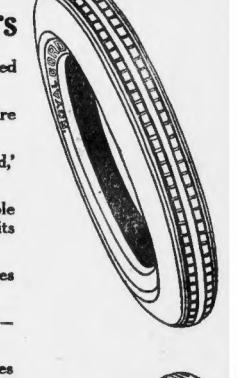
'Nobby,' 'Chain,' 'Usco,' 'Royal Cord,' and 'Plain.'

Each will give from a little to a whole lot more mileage than other tires in its class.

Motorists buy, and re-buy, United States 'Balanced' Tires, because of—what?

Service—satisfactory service—mileage—value—least amount of trouble.

That's the reason that United States 'Balanced' Tires show such steady, consistent sales increases.



Ask the nearest United States Tire Dealer for your copy of the booklet, "Judging Tires," which tells how to find the particular tire to suit your needs.

LAWRENCE PAIR HUNTED HERE AS ELOPERS

Policemen from all the Boston stations, together with plain-clothes men and inspectors, today began a hunt for Anna Pece, a seventeen-year-old Lawrence girl, who is believed to have eloped from that city late yesterday with Benny Tassusi, seventeen, also of Lawrence.

Taking two suit cases filled with clothing, the pair, on leaving Lawrence, are thought to have boarded a train for Boston. The parents of the girl communicated with the Lawrence police and a general alarm was at once sent out.

The girl is described as tall, slim and of light complexion. She has a gold tooth in the left side of her mouth. She was dressed in a black and white check coat, a brown suit, brown hat, with pink flowers, and black slippers.

Tassusi is five feet tall. He wore a blue suit and cap.

Boston Lady Gives Strong Endorsement for the New Remedy, Plant Juice.

As health talks become more frequent, both from the platform and in the newspapers, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, namely, that good health cannot be found in the powder box or rouge pot. True, the externals of health may be found in this manner, but the basis of health lies deeper, and is just as easily obtained.

Many remedies can be purchased, but the best, in the opinion of most women, is Plant Juice, the new herbal system remedy. Thousands of women have been benefited by the use of this great preparation. Among these is Mrs. Joseph Pluff, who lives at No. 65 St. Germain street, and is a well known Boston lady, having lived in this city for the past 22 years, who stated:

"For 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and dyspepsia, and all my food fermented in my stomach and caused gas to form there. I could not eat or sleep and felt weak and miserable. I had palpitation of the heart, headaches and dizzy spells caused from a deranged liver. I could hardly get my breath when going up stairs and finally got so weak I could hardly get about to do my housework, which was a drag to me. I had no ambition or energy to do anything; always felt tired and all played out. I heard of Plant Juice through a friend and since I have taken it for a few weeks I can eat anything, sleep well and my housework is a pleasure to me, as Plant Juice has entirely cured me of all my aches and pains. I shall recommend Plant Juice to all my friends."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Boston & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. —Advertisement.

Alkali Makes Soap Bad for Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain unrefined cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Courtship of South Seas Is Interpreted on Rocks at Nahant

C. S. Henshaw, distributor of the Dodge Brothers car, has been notified that "Death Valley Dodge," driven by O. K. Parker of Los Angeles, has successfully made the trip to the bottom of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and back to the rim. This is the first time in the history of motoring that the feat has ever been performed. It was impossible to use the burro trails and Mr. Parker made a new route to the bottom of the gorge, being compelled in many places to blast enormous rocks out of the way. The canyon was more than a mile deep at the point where the descent was made.

C. J. Welch, manager of the solid truck tire department of the United States Tire Company, says that his department is simply swamped with orders. "We don't have to sell truck tires," he said, "My big problem is in filling orders rapidly enough. Our factories are running day and night. Orders are pouring in on us constantly, and I credit it all to the fact that our new 800-ton vulcanizing process and the new rubber compound have combined to make our truck tires render mileage so far beyond the ordinary that everyone who hears of their remarkable service demands United States truck tires."

FRANCE HONORS VAUX DEFENDER

Paris, June 7.—Battalion Commander Raynal, who is defending Fort Vaux with untiring energy, has been made commander of the Legion of Honor.

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, whose knowledge of the classics is so profound that he writes critical essays on Greek literature, has missed by attending the Chicago Convention a visit to his estate by several nymphs.

According to classic mythology, in which the senior Senator from the Bay State is an expert, a nymph is one of the inferior divinities of nature, a beautiful maiden living in the forests, on the hills and rocks and a in Nature generally.

The nymps who come to Senator Lodge's estate at Nahant are strictly up-to-date, 1916 model. They compose the band of dancers under the charge of Marshall Hall, who have been doing barefoot dances in garments of "low visibility," as they say in reports of sea battles.

Hall and his nymphs posed and danced on the Ledge rocks for a "movie" film, dealing with the romance and courtship of a south Sea islander.

The six South Sea maids wore "gowns" of rafia over burlap suits, with arms and legs bare. The rafia "gowns" gave the effect, for "movie" purposes of a garment scantily fashioned of seaweed or vegetable fibre, which is, as everybody knows, the very smartest thing in South Sea society.

Mr. Hall wore a huge set of false whiskers, for he was a wild man of the South Sea Islands. The wind blew chill upon Mr. Hall's exposed limbs and, between the wind and the false whiskers and the excitement of staging the film action he wished to secure, spectators admitted that the "wild" effect was perfect.

Occasionally a nymph would come in severe contact with one of the unimpressionable Nahant rocks and would feel as wild as any South Sea Islander ever dared to feel.

Boston's "Rookies" Shape Up Like Real Soldiers

The AMERICAN was sent Willard H. Davis to the cadet camp at Plattsburg to tell how Boston and other New England citizens are training to help defend this nation efficiently in case of war. The preparedness parades throughout the country have shown that the nation is aroused to out to the necessity of being prepared. It is today the not his important issue in the nation. Mr. Davis will tell from day to day how the citizens are working to learn how to defend the nation and to lead others to do defense.

By WILLARD H. DAVIS,
Staff Correspondent Boston American

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 7.—Boston's contingent to the Plattsburg camp is fast whipping into shape. Today at 5.45 a. m. when reveille was sounded by the bugler, out rolled the Boston "four hundred" ready for anything that might be assigned them.

After washing in cold water and splashing about in a twelve-inch tin basin, shaving in cold water, too, a dinky little mirror attached to an to an improvised arrangement, brisk orders were given by the commanding officers to "fall in."

The mess call was then sounded. This call is the favorite one of the various assortment the boys hear during a day's routine. To them it means "chow" or as they would say in their office or State or Congress streets "something to eat."

This e a m breakfast regime isn't making a great hit with some who have been accustomed to a little later house but they are too good sports to say anything, and they know that it wouldn't result in having their breakfast's served to them in their tent if they did register any kicks.

FIRST BLOOD SHED TODAY.

The chief feature of today's camp activities was to be the inoculating of all volunteers who desire to be protected against any diseases that might break out in camp. Major Herbert Shaw, chief of the medical staff at the camp, presides at the examination and attends to the inoculation.

The inoculation is optional with the men. A serum is injected into the body at different intervals and places. The first inoculation is usually made in the arm, ten days after the second injection is made, followed ten days later by the third injection. Major Shaw said:

This inoculation is for preventive purposes.

Our sanitary conditions at this camp are very nearly perfect.

I anticipate no sickness. I have not had a single case yet, not even the common headache.

The men seem to be a hardy lot and in good condition.

It was understood that three of four men had been rejected after the physical examinations of yesterday. The Boston men are as especially fit collection physically. The majority have had more or less military training. There are many of the Plest Corps men present. Many are members of militia companies, and that those who have had the practical experience have done some conscientious studying is very evident.

SAMUEL CABOT A SERGEANT.

Samuel Cabot, head of the Samuel Cabot Company, Inc., manufacturing chemists, was in at the camp for his second year of instruction, and proves one of the popular men here. His men in E street, F Company, is a sort of gathering place for those who desire to learn the first rudiments.

Mr. Cabot has the rank of sergeant and has an active part in the training of the "rookies." He had just returned from the camp tailor's when I met him in a mud hole near his tent. He said:

Yes, indeed, the boys are doing wonderfully well, under the present weather conditions especially.

They shape up as well as the boys did last year, I think. Of course, too much cannot be said about this splendid movement.

I take a great personal interest in this work. Every man in the camp does. I am glad to give my hearty indorsement of the Plattsburg movement.

One of the events which the officers had looked for all last year, and had been on the watch for during the two days since the boys have been here, happened today. It was at the beach. Despite the very cold water of Lake Champlain several of the men took a plunge on the shores of the pond.

The beach borders the Delaware & Hudson Railroad tracks. In the midst of the bathing party a train load of women picnickers went by. Banners bearing the initials Y. W. C. A. passed slowly. The beach borders the Delaware & Hudson Railroad tracks. In the midst of the bathing party a train load of women picnickers went by. Banners bearing the initials Y. W. C. A. passed slowly. As a majority of the men do not bother with such pleasure things as bathing suits it is needless to say that there was some hurry to scoot. One or two officers were upon the beach, but quick witted as they are, they doubt conceive of no order to relieve the situation. And that water was surely cold!

The work done last night by the Boston men in K, L and M streets, which were flooded by heavy rains, was the subject of much comment today. Doctors, lawyers and professors "dug" out in the middle of the night with spades and shovels in the pouring rain and commenced to dig trenches by which the water could drain off properly.

One corporal said: "The spirit of that crowd from Boston is great. I never saw anything like it in the regular army. One tent which held two doctors piled out and dug for early an hour. Not a kick was heard."

Among the Boston men who passed easily the physical examination were G. A. Foster, H. B. Lovell, C. H. Vaughan, A. M. Wyman, Arthur O. Yeames and G. A. Clarke.

Braves Need Base Hits
Cards a Peppery Bunch

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

In Monday's game the trouble was in failure to hit, for three chances presented themselves and no hit. On Tuesday, save in one inning, there was no great danger to the Cards for the Braves not only couldn't hit, but they couldn't seem to get men on. Otherwise the Braves outlined all well right. The team is playing as an airtight club in the league as it is not winning. There wasn't a hit or a near hit from any of the outfielders, which is something worth noting, there being a baseball tradition that garden fenders must first of all be hitters.

A change was made in the selection of these men, but it didn't develop anything. In a close game where the pitching is about an even thing it is usually the break that causes a decision. In this game such club made three hits in the seventh inning. One club got two runs and the other one. Three hits for four bases netted the two and three singles the other, slow fielding had something to do with it, but most of the runs are charged to pitching, and from where I sat the Cards appeared to deserve the game, having outhitted the Braves.

Defensively the Cards put up a fine game. The outfield covering the ground while Betzel and Miller show particularly in knocking down balls or take it the slow way and getting that made their plays possible? Either way the result was the same. Smith didn't appear to have any difficulty picking men off at second, and certainly Sallee was to the point of the definition. If this is the kind of ball the Cards can play, the team isn't going to be in the cellar. If it is only a flash, it was a good flash.

CARDS PEPPERY.

The team clusters like a bunch of college players, and it has plenty of kick, while Miller Huggins doesn't appear in the least discouraged. His team has a peppery, fighting way that the Braves, losing them, and now stands with one game each to its credit. The Cards have no particular star in their firmament, but they appear to be very much in earnest in their work so the series should be an interesting one.

The fight for a place in the Big Four is on, and one of the Western clubs at least will land there or I shall be very much mistaken.

BRAVES NEED BIRT.

If there were any such thing as a diet to prescribe ball players to produce hits, President P. D. Haughton would have his men eat double fare. As there isn't any such thing, the head of the company will have to wait and watch while his team either takes a brace in this direction and by it win a few games, or through lack of hitting, slides as gracefully as possible "Back Home."

Since the Braves have returned for their games against the Western clubs, playing the first three in Cincinnati and one with the Cards they have scored five runs on twenty-three hits, against their opponents' seven runs on twenty-two hits. They have had 26 men left on bases against 21.

There is one thing noticeable about the Cards of '16 and that is the desire upon their part to play ball and do little talking. The speed of the first game was a world's record in such series. In the seasons past, when Miller Huggins played at second, there was hardly a ball pitched that went wrong, that didn't cause a general conference of the team in the vicinity of the pitcher's box. Some games dragged along until way past the dinner hour. Perhaps now that Miller has decided to play the part of manager without playing second base, the team will become almost human in this respect. Miller is a grand player, a clever manager, a fighter every inch of him, and game as a pebble all the way no matter how much the score may be. He appears to have his team with him, scrapping for the runs without scrapping among themselves or with the umpires, which is a combination that does not fit in the cellar position.

To the handful of faithful supporters of the Braves who weathered the approaching thunder storm, two twirlers were put in motion on the warm-up line—Lefty Tyler and Dick Rudolph —while Sallee wound up in front of the visitors' bench. Dick cut out his work early, and it looked as if Tyler would match his curves against the long boy from St. Louis.

You can't tell what will happen at Braves Field these days, and the guess was bad, for Tyler retired just before it was necessary for a pitcher to appear at the slab, and Rudolph strolled out for a day's work. Dick is always a good worker, so there was not much hitting; in fact, it was confined to but one inning, as far as any effectiveness was concerned, but in that one inning enough damage was done to tuck the game away.

Rudolph found his teammates helpless with the stick as he went down to defeat, pitching good enough ball to have won had there been a punch in any of the Braves' bats.

SALLEE WOULDN'T WEAKEN.

Aside from the fifth inning in which all the scoring of the game was done, the Miracle Men just couldn't hit the ball safely. The first eleven men retired in order, and a man who filled with a stolen base was as far as any Bostonian could get. The next three men in were easy outs and a pass to Fitzpatrick didn't mean anything, as he was thrown out at first. In five innings Sallee held them hitless.

During this time Dick was working finely, the second inning being the only one for a minute to threaten, but he pulled himself out of a with trouble with third and first with no one out. He fanned Betzel and Snyder hit into a double play that was very much in the clear.

The Cards went out in order in the third, fourth and fifth, with Corhan leading off in the sixth with a single to left. Sallee delivered the ball but perfectly. Beacher had fanned and been thrown out the second time up. Upon this occasion he lammed one to left field toward the foul line, which Gowdy was very much in getting after, considering Beacher's speed.

MAGEE VERY TARDY.

The Cardinals' left gardener made three bases on it. Now if there is any alibi it will probably rest with Magee's slowness, but had Beacher been held to two bases he would have advanced to third, and the chances are he would have scored with other clone after.

As it was, the sacrifice fly to left sent him over for the second tally. Corhan being the first to score. His ice got a hit but tried to take second after the ball in Rudolph's hand and was out.

The Cards had Wilson on second through a hit and an error by Konetchy in the seventh, but couldn't score, and two passes with two out in the eighth looked dark until Hornsby was thrown out.

Just to show he had more than one catcher, Stallage sent Tragesser in to work and he got the first single off Sallee, a nice hit to centre. This meant a run, for with one out, Rudolph on a fly to J. Smith Maranville singled and Egan's clean one to centre put Tragesser over.

The Rabbit was caught flatfooted off third on a bluff throw by Snyder, after Gowdy had batted Rudolph to second and hit the first ball pitched up to the air to Betzel.

That was all there was to the punchless game for Collins in the ninth got on after two were out by being hit, and it looked like "Lefty," but (some inside stuff) Dick was sent out dramatically to face the music. Nothing like trying things to bewilder your opponent.

TWO clean hits off Rudolph in the second looked bad for a minute until Betzel fanned and Snyder hit into a double play.

MAGEE was thrown out on what looked like a base hit back of second, Betzel making a nice play in the second, and Miller robbed Red Smith of a single back of first.

TRAGESSER broke the no-hit pos-sibility by driving a nice single to centre first man up in the sixth.

WHEN Gowdy was used as a pinch hitter it removed him from the game and had Tragesser been injured the catching would have fallen upon Ricco, the Huntington schoolboy which reminds us when Herbie Moran was behind the big bat in one game.

MILLER made several remarkable plays at first, notably his throw of the throw on J. C. Smith in the fifth.

WILSON'S one fielding chance was a great one-handed catch of Egan's foul fly in the ninth, on the run.

WHEN Collins stole second he in-jured his hand and Compton ran for him.

THE outfield was changed once more, Magee in left, Fitzpatrick in centre and Wilhoit in right.

THE only base stolen by the Cards was by J. Smith on a high throw.

THE crowd was even smaller than on Monday, 15 looked lost in the huge stand and bleachers.

PART of that interested crowd which used to bunch in the right field section of the pavilion chose the left field side. A policeman stood close up to them.

Tigers Not Bothered by Left-handers in Recent Games—Sox May Send Shore After Game.

Detroit, June 7—The Tygers are up in the Western series with the Red Sox. But Manager Carrigan still has his heavy artillery in reserve for Detroit. Shore, Leonard, Ruth and Foster are still available for work, and any one of the five is certain according to the form sheets to be more effective against the Jungaleers than Vean Gregg, who worked yesterday.

Just why the southpaw was pitched has the dopesters guessing, admittedly Carrigan had a couple of reasons. His slab starts were roughly handled over at Cleveland, and Bill probably wanted to give Vean as much rest as possible. Then, probably, he still clung to the idea that the Detroiters are helpless before any sort of southpaw twirling. A summary of the pitching which Detroit faced during the first seven games of the season shows that thirty-four left-handers and thirty-five right-handers had been worked against them. Some seventeen crooked arms and some eighteen left-handers who started games failed to finish them. Six southpaws finished the games they started, and a dozen right-handers were all successful. Four of those left-handers won and six nine of the right-handers.

The trouble with this idea that portside flingers can bother the Tigers is that there is now only one left-handed batter on the club who is likely to be bothered by them. Cobb left, and Hellmann and Burns are right-handers. These three are driving in the runs. The two earned runs that Detroit got yesterday were driven home by Heilman, who does not southpaw, and the one which scored on Hollitzel's three base drive in the second inning would have been registered anyway by Dubs's single a few minutes later. Double hits from either side of the plate, as does Young, who got two hits Tuesday.

Greig has not been very successful against Detroit of late, years, but after the second round he looked slug out ball and allowed only two hits.

BADLY PATCHED-UP FRONT.

The Red Sox looked as shattered as their line-up indicated. Hooper and Gardner were out. Janvrin moved over to third, while Scott played short and Henriksen was in right field. McNally contained his second as Barry is not well enough to return to the fray.

While the errors were chalked up against Walker and Hollitzel, the infield did pay work smoothly and did not appear to be off their nip. Perhaps Dauss was chiefly to blame, George allowed but two hits until the ninth and then only one more. Pooling that sort of pitching would make any club look bad.

The Red Sox really had one good scoring chance. That was in the ninth. Shorten started the inning by reaching first when Rinch pulled a hard grounder. Cobb caught Henriksen's fly, and Dauss retired Gardner, who batted for McNally.

UP TO WALKER—PASS.

With two out, Hollitzel walked and Lewis singled to Shotten, only a speedy relay stop by Rush checking an extra base hit. With the bases full, Tillie Walker fanned.

Dauss warmed up before yesterday's game, and the dope has it he will pitch today. Carrigan needs it badly. Either of these gentlemen possess sufficient pitching skill to beat the Tigers, but neither of them are in the midst of a big winning streak.

There is no comparison between the club the Red Sox faced two weeks ago in Boston and the Detroit outfit they bucked yesterday. The Jungaleers have a world of peppery, and their offensive play is spectacular in the extreme.

It is a clean cut Carrigana now some great pitching yesterday. Cunningham is the probable Tyger pitcher today with Hamilton in the offing.

HOOPER-BARRY ON DECK

Detroit, June 7.—Harry Hooper and Jack Barry, two maimed Red Sox stars, reported to Manager Carrigan yesterday. It is understood that if either player will be able to get into the Detroit series Harry saw the game from the grandstand. His heavy cold has not yet left him.

B. C. HIGH IN CLASH WITH NORWOOD

The Boston College High nine will entertain Norwood High at the Walpole street grounds this afternoon. Norwood High has a remarkably strong team this year and has been considered a strong contender for the State title. Boston College High got quite a setback when the Rindge game was cancelled Saturday, but will make a good showing in the game this afternoon.

Dumas is Coach Tom McCabe's choice as mounddman this afternoon.

LEONARD-DUNDEE DATE IS SWITCHED

New York, June 7.—The fight between Benny Leonard and Johnny Dundee, scheduled for Madison Square Garden tonight, and which Leonard tried to pass up, owing to a booking with Freddie Welsh, will take place next Monday night. So announces Chairman Wenck of the State Boxing Commission. The Leonard-Welsh battle will be put on at Washington Park, Brooklyn, Friday, June 16.

TUFTS IN CLASH AT YALE

Medford Collegians After Game in New Haven—O'Mara, Star Boxman, to Oppose Blue.

New Haven, Ct., June 7. — With eighteen victories to their credit this season, the Tufts baseball nine, confident of adding another to their list, arrived here early today to tackle the Yale team this afternoon. The Medford Collegians are playing their hardest week's schedule of the season and started off with a 4 to 0 win over the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College in Springfield yesterday. The sound all-round jump to Hartford following today's game with Yale, and will meet Trinity tomorrow in their second game this season. Then Tufts will journey to Worcester Saturday to play Holy Cross.

Although the team displayed a great fighting spirit in its game with Springfield, several men are on the verge of collapse. Captain Stafford at second base and Leland, the right fielder, who is leading the college world in batting, are both unfit to play. Stafford is suffering from a bad knee which he received when thrown over the head of First Baseman Palmer of the Massachusetts Aggies, while Leland is nourishing several torn ligaments. Anderson, the left gardener, is also absent from the team with a bad ankle which confines him to the hospital.

The Medford and Blue players romped home with a 7 to 3 victory when they clashed up against the Eli players here last season. O'Mara, the portside flinger of the Tufts team, or possibly another left-hander, are scheduled to work on the mound against the Yale team.

O'Dowd Easy for Britton

St. Paul Battler Willing

By RINGSIDE.

While there's credit galore coming to Michael O'Dowd, the 150-pound battler from faraway St. Paul, for crowding so much willingness into his Queensberry performance with Jack Britton, the welterweight champion before a veritable sea of all humanity in the St. Botolph street amusement casino being practically packed to the doors, never for as many as five consecutive seconds did he have a chance to land right side up—to be rewarded the victor.

It takes two to make a fight, likewise does a mob of lovers of the manly art, and, as already mentioned, O'Dowd did his best. It is on the cards for him to run the dope to be the runner-up, and the conceded betting odds that the dope was not go-

The bout probably seemed better than it really was, due to all the miserable matches the Armory A. A. has put on of late weeks. It was the first time this season the management has toted anything like fair with the fans. The fans proved the looking was appreciated, so, more of the real things, solons. You can't lose when you don't pike. Boston always has, and always will, support that what hurderethn on the real thing.

It was a championship battle, for the most excellent reason Britton and O'Dowd did not permit a trace of the light of the welterweight crown to dim, scarcely. Perhaps in the whole of all Britton's ring life he was strong that Michael dished the wang, he fell with it altogether.

MIKE DIDN'T WEIGH IN.

Evidently it had been arranged that the two boxers to make 147 pounds at 3 o'clock, and, as all the fans know, that's over the limit. Britton showed up and made weight. O'Dowd was on hand, but didn't get on the scales. It was announced that the two boys had weighed in at 147. That's all humbug, as neither of them by the know-how of hoodwinked to weigh.

In that case it may be the fact that O'Dowd was as much in fresh as he wanted to be, as big and as strong as possible, simply served to add zest to the occasion. Britton was trouncing Leach Cross and those very fine slam bang birds long before he was in the running, and when he was really a fellow.

He entirely too good and to artistic for every battler of the O'Dowd stripe that ever entered the sporting. O'Dowd full credit with having done his best pleased and aided in making the show a sweet success, truth it is he was shelled throughout by Britton and never had a chance to land right side up, unless fortunate enough to herd a wild swing, a dear old haymaker.

This boxer has a good health record the bout. The skilled officials was given a terrible beating when he climbed through the ropes. He ran the bout well all of the route, picked the right boy, found the backers of the Jorgeshot aggie. Their usual loud squawk, following the issuing of the jury decision.

Most of the way both Britton and O'Dowd worked wisely and cleanly, making it an easy number for Powers to handle. Never once did O'Dowd go as much as bend the rules the sinking bit. As for Britton, he fudged a few times, rapped stiffly the jaw in several breakaways.

A couple of the rounds were quite spectacular. Leastwise they attracted, following all the runs, loss balls the Armory A. A. has been handling. Easily won the ninth frame the banner one of the lot. O'Dowd rushed out of his corner, left upon entering things to Britton if possible for a second or two it looked so. Mike might reach Jack, but he was so quick to rally and protect himself from O'Dowds bull-like assaults.

The third round belonged to O'Dowd. The St. Paul boy, the dasher by the seventh, ninth and eleventh, though judging those numbers on the three-minute basis, he would have the honors. Britton won the fourth, fifth, eighth, tenth and twelfth. There's no doubt of that. In fact, the champion had a distinct shade the shade of the champion over the challenging, going louder, all the way.

In the semi-bout Alec McLean has George Alger in the best of going and the latter boy gained a 10 point victory over "Chuck" West of Chicago. West was slow to get started, otherwise he hardly would have gained a draw. For four rounds "Chuck" did little or nothing, and all the while Alger was trying hard to travel on high. It wasn't a whale of a battle, but that wasn't Alger's fault, as he tried from start to finish to make matters lively.

Johnny Dow's son and "Kid" Lee put up rattling, fifty six rounder. Matty Baldwin and Jack Kelly was tossed proper.

NEXT, GLOVER AND LEWIS

Mike Glover of south Boston, New England's welterweight champion, and Ted (Kid) Lewis of London meet in the main event of the boxing show at the Arena next Tuesday night. The preliminary bouts are: Harry Greb of Pittsburgh vs. Frank Simon of Boston, eight rounds; Frank Stone and Arthur McDonald, six rounds, and Teddy Murphy and Freddie Rose, six rounds.

Here's Umpire Who Has a Heart; Gives Pitcher Good Advice

Anniston, Ala., June 7.—Of all the yarns told in regard to Ty Cobb, Jim Morrison, one of the pitchers with the Anniston club, tells one of the best.

Morrison says that it was his fate to pitch against the Georgia Peach in an exhibition game this Spring, and that every time Cobb came to the bat he would give him a free pass to first.

In the eighth inning Cobb came to the bat with the bases crowded and the score tied. Morrison turned to the umpire and asked, "What shall I throw that guy?" "Throw him a fast one and we will both duck," replied the ump.

The fast one was thrown and both the umpire and Morrison fell with their faces to the ground. The pitcher says when he got up the left fielder was chasing the ball and the third baseman was looking for his shoe.

RING REMARKS

ENGLISH WOMAN CHAMP

Manchester, June 7.—Mrs. William A. Gavin, the brilliant playing English woman golfer, in the United States in the interests of Red Cross work for the allies in the European war, today won the championship of the Women's Eastern Golf Association championship at the Essex County Club course with a score of 206 for the 54 holes play.

Miss Harriet S. Curtis, former national champion who led at the end of the first round was put back to the pack when Miss Marion Hollins of New York, who entered a card 8 tied with Mrs. R. H. Barlow at 208 for second place.

Miss Curtis having played a 94 for the final 18 holes had a score of 225.

Mrs. Gavin had a 47 at the first hole and an 8 at the 12, but otherwise her game was sound and true. Her only fault in running up the 225 was the edge of the green. Her long game appeared to be the great Dakes's nothing wanted. Her card

Miss Hollins had a fine 47 and splendid possibilities to tie the score of Mrs. Gavin, the champion. She put down a number of good putts, her long game was up to her best, but otherwise she would have been in a position to put off for the play.

Her card

Mrs. R. H. Barlow, former three other Eastern champs, returned a card of 92 to 93 and 94 totaled 279. She will play off the tie with Miss Hollins for runner-up this afternoon.

Mrs. Barlow's card

Miss Curtis encountered a lot of trouble on her final round. She played with Mrs. Gavin. At the twelfth Miss Curtis was off of the tee up nine strokes and quite from it she took seven at first and put it in the eleventh.

RING REMARKS

New York, June 7.—Jack Hubbard, who formerly boxed under the name of Jumbo Wells, will meet Battling Levinsky in the steel arena here at the Clermont Avenue rink, in Brooklyn tomorrow night. In the six round semi-final battling Joe Ryan tackles Frankie Fields.

* * *

* * *

Jimmy Reagan of New York and Joe Mooney of the West Side and Dave McLar and Johnny Lore, will clash at the Pioneer Sporting Club Friday night.

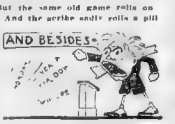
Young Otto and Sliz Sack, White Astes and Battling Henry show the same night in two tens at the Harlem A. C.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Gaw, gaw, gaw!
It is all that a man can smell,
More fumes arise to the Summer skies
Than a human voice can tell.

Oh, well for the sailor lad
Who is out in his boat on the bay,
He suffers not from the gaseous rot—
He is numerous miles away.

But the same old game rolls on
And the acrobe sadly rolls a pill



As he looks with hate on a delegate
Whom he eagerly yearns to kill.

Gaw, gaw, gaw!
It ascends to the arching sky,
And the noble rails for political stalls
As it has in the years gone by.

We are an optimist. We still believe that the average delegate to a national convention is not a repugnative citizen.

TRY THIS ON YOUR FIRELESS COOKER

By AL C. JOY

Here is the recipe we use
In writing games each day;
Just figure on the rival crews
And how they always play;
Then take a dozen hits or more,
Add half a dozen walks,
Put "wild pitch" in to boost the score,
And help it out with balks.
Be sure just where you put the run
Each time the plate is crossed,
And when you're sure the dish is done,
Stir this in:
BOSTON LOST!

Don't worry if your fire is hot,
Or if it's cold. Each fan
Who sees them play has always got
The poor Braves on the pan.
No need for you to fume and stew,
For each Brave long has boasted,
That ev'ry time he comes in view
He's always fairly roasted.
And when the game at last is done,
Serve very hot, and then
Spice up with this for ev'ry run:
THE BRAVES HAVE LOST AGAIN!

STERLING ALE

Brewing fine ale is almost a fine art.

No brewer has a monopoly on fine malt and hops. But brewed into Sterling—along with the best materials money can buy—is all we have learned about our own business in nearly fifty honest years.

That's why we cannot duplicate Sterling Ale.

SECOND WOMAN FOUND DRUGGED AND BOUND

Island Pond, Vt., June 7.—For the second time in two days a woman resident of this town has been found lying bound, gagged and unconscious on the sidewalk of Cross street, the main thoroughfare in the town.

The latest victim is Mrs. Alberta Smith, twenty-eight, who was found in a corner from chloroform, upon the Pine Brook Hotel, where she was employed as a waitress.

The night before, seventy-year-old Vivian Connolly, daughter of a wealthy lumber dealer, was found bound in the same condition, but a few feet away from where Mrs. Smith was found.

Sheriff Elias Bemis and an armed posse are searching the surrounding countryside, the residents of which are in a state of terror. No women are allowed on the streets of the town after dark. Without doubt, each is almost every house weapons are standing ready at all times.

Alaska Should Make American Citizens Richer

And That Will Happen if the Citizens Insist on Government Ownership and Apply It to Alaska

Copyright, 1916, in the Star Company

THE following article, which we ask you to read with attention, is written by Charles Ferguson, formerly Special Agent of the United States Department of Commerce in London, Paris and Berlin.

Government ownership in Alaska would give opportunity to millions of Americans, increase the wealth of other millions, find employment for tens of thousands of men at high wages under government ownership, for the government could use all PUBLIC property for the benefit of the people, and discontinue the system of allowing cunning exploiters on the lowest wage basis to make the profit for their own pockets.

Read now what Mr. Ferguson, an experienced man, writes on the subject:

Government Ownership in Alaska

By CHARLES FERGUSON

(Formerly special agent of the United States Department of Commerce in London, Paris and Berlin)

The government owns Alaska as a man owns his hat. The government bought Alaska for hard cash—paid into the Russian treasury.

That was nearly half a century ago. Meanwhile some forty thousand white people have moved in, to stay—besides the immense flux of fortune hunters who have not stayed. These forty thousand have acquired private rights in the Alaskan soil. Also it is to be noted that certain capitalistic adventurers have spread as stout and wide a net of legal claims as their lawyers could fabricate over the natural sources of gold, coal, fish and furs.

Still, there is a lot of Alaska left untouched by private titles. In fact, the private appropriations do not amount to much when set over against the gifts of nature. So we still have in Alaska an incontestible case of government ownership on a grand scale. The American people can do what they like with this big farm. It is theirs.

Individual fortunes have been made in Alaska larger than the price paid to Russia for the whole country. There is no doubt, therefore, that a great public fortune can be made out of it.

Uncle Sam is rich. It is scandalous that so many of his children should be poor.

HOW TO CONSIDER QUESTION

What to do with Alaska—how to develop this public estate for the advantage of its hundred million owners—should be an interesting, even a somewhat exciting question.

In considering this question it may be well to remind ourselves that the American people once owned nine-tenths of the territory of the United States in exactly the same way that we now own the territory of Alaska. Public ownership was once the big fact, and private ownership was a comparatively little fact. But the great public estate of continental America has somehow mostly slipped through the fingers of the public. The recovery of such a part of this estate as the public ought naturally to have and hold is the chief social and political problem of our time.

And here lies the point about Alaska. It is the main social and political experiment station of continental America. If we can maintain a sound public ownership in Alaska we can regain it in the forty-eight States.

Government investigations have shown that Alaskan agricultural resources are about as good as those of the Scandinavian countries—that they can be made to yield in sufficient quantities the kind of cereals, vegetables, meats and berries that now sustain nine million people in Sweden, Norway and Finland.

ROADS MUST COME FIRST.

But in this vast territory—with a land surface equal to about a fifth of the United States—there exists as yet not so much as a thousand miles, all told, of any kind of road, that is better than a bear track.

So the first question of public ownership is the road question—railroads, wagon roads.

Now here we face the primary paradox of civilization, to wit: A road cannot be made to pay its upkeep unless it runs to places where people live; on the other hand, people can't live in a place until there is a road that runs to it.

The solution of this paradox lies in the proposition that roads must be built before it pays to maintain them. And in that proposition, with its plain and necessary implications, lies the whole philosophy of government ownership of railroads.

Congress has authorized the building of publicly owned railroads in Alaska, and the Department of the Interior is busy on the job. After all, this is not an experiment. On the contrary, it proceeds in accordance with the well-ascertained law of social development, as indicated above.

FAIR CHANCE IS ASSURED.

The Union Pacific or Southern Pacific was an experiment. It was less than a gambler's chance we took when we asked bold financiers like C. P. Huntington to try to make railroads through wildernesses pay dividends to investors from the start-off by the settlement-killing process of charging "all that the traffic would bear." Those experiments turned out badly.

In Alaska we are making a fair start in the railroad business—on grounds of elementary social science and sober sense.

Once-Overs

Teach your children to be truthful!

Impress upon them that if they tell you the truth they will be given far less punishment than they would receive if they lied to you.

The parent who has a child he can rely on to tell the truth is fortunate.

It is worth a good deal to know where any one stands, and a truthful child is the most reachable one, for you know where to find him.

Truth-telling raises the standard of every one who is known to possess this good quality.

Those who tell the truth may not always be the most popular, but they never fail to command respect, and that is worth a great deal more.

The man whose word can be relied upon occupies an enviable place in the community.

The place is not overcrowded.

It may take some time and test to make a truthful boy out of that lad of yours, but it is worth all the efforts it requires. Set an example of truth, but do not let it end there. The secret of success in everything worth while in this life lies in the habit of truth. Truth is the eternal law of being.

The Day Before the Convention---Dreary Outlook

The Republicans Might Have Said with the French Poet: "It Rains in My Heart as It Rains in the Street"

Some Observations by A. Brisbane

THE REPUBLICANS PROBABLY COULD ELECT HUGHES.

They could not elect Roosevelt.

But they cannot elect Hughes, unless Roosevelt allows it—and he probably will not allow it.

In that neatly constructed "Manger" called the Progressive party, Mr. Roosevelt stands and barks at all other Republican candidates for the Presidency. The Republicans spent a dreary, rainy day.

Some say that Roosevelt would support General Wood. Because we may possibly have a war, he thinks the nation should be led by a soldier, especially one guaranteed by him.

Other citizens believe that the nation will face conditions under which a soldier might not be the best man. Others think that even if we do have war, the American plan of putting an ordinary citizen at the top, with soldiers under him—as in the case of Lincoln—might still work fairly well.

But Roosevelt says: "No, you need a soldier, a statesman, a hero, and many other things—all concentrated in me. And if you won't take ME and the entire heroic bill of fare, you must at least have a soldier."

If there were talk of burglary, Mr. Roosevelt would probably insist that a policeman be made President of the United States.

The fact is, apparently, that Mr. Roosevelt has decided to demonstrate his power once more, and to fire out the Republican party by making clear the fact that it cannot have anything until it swallows him.

Two intelligent Socialists, one of them Charles E. Russell, who ran for Governor in the State of New York, are here enjoying the dilemma of the ancient Republican party. Both agree that the nomination of Roosevelt and Wilson would mean two and a half million votes for the Socialists this year. Both hope that Hughes will not be nominated.

One of them said: "The Progressives are the I. W. W. of the Republican party, and Roosevelt is Billy Haywood using "Sabotage" on the Republican machine.

That is a fairly good description of the situation.

All day long the rain poured down, all day long the statesmen and others talked.

And all day long Mr. Wilson would have smiled pleasantly if he could have been here and watched and listened.

It is said that Mr. McAdoo is to resign his comfortable job to take charge of his father-in-law's campaign—Mr. McAdoo may well keep the position and the salary.

Unless those who know his temperament are mistaken, Mr. Roosevelt will do for Wilson all that a dozen McAdoos could possibly do. His Progressive friends, who are nothing in particular outside of the Bull Moose party and very important in that party, are determined to nominate him.

And he feels that if the people will not allow him to nominate himself, or his chosen soldier or policeman, to meet this grave national crisis, he will have to run as an outsider, and the Republican party must take the consequences of its obstinacy.

It is an interesting, important experiment in self government.

The self government dwindles down to Mr. Roosevelt, accidentally made President, a man who has developed capacity, power and usefulness IN NO PARTICULAR DIRECTION, who feeds the public upon vociferous platitudes and will probably compel them to take four years more of the man of mild platitudes.

The people throughout the country look out with nothing to say; the delegates, white and colored, gathered here, discuss and whisper, and have nothing to say.

Government of the people, for the people, by the people, as represented in the Republican party, is waiting to see whether or not the hero of Kettle Hill will allow any one out of a hundred million human beings to be nominated for the Presidency—except himself.

It does not appear that popular government in 1916 is an unqualified success or that the will of the people has discovered any way of making itself felt.

This convention should have an educational value for the people of the United States. It ought to enlighten them as to the character of the "great Republican party," supposed to represent the conservative intelligence of the country.

It is a party adrift, helpless, dazed. It is unable to protect itself against one energetic individual, a combination of General Boulanger and Bill Haywood, who says:

"Take me or you shall have nothing."

The "old-time" Republicans say that if Roosevelt DOES insist upon running alone, and electing Wilson, he will have a "dreadful punishment."

But the Republican party itself is more apt to have the punishment. Mr. Roosevelt will always have fun. If a party representing more than one-half of one hundred million people cannot escape the bullying of a comical, self-satisfied mixture of Falstaff and Don Quixote it ought to die, and it will die.

In dying it may make room for something representing the majority.

The owners of the Republican party, old style, who have their men and their money at work here, are completely baffled and puzzled as they play a childish game, trying to nominate their Lawyer Root. They may be estimable managers of organized money—but they have lost the cunning and the leadership of Hanna, they have even lost the art of buying what they want.

No wonder intelligent Socialists study the situation with amusement and hope.

This is more like a convention of the feeble-minded than a gathering of men undertaking to manage a big country. A pitiful fact is that nobody even mentions any serious work that the party, if it wins, ought to undertake.

At this Republican convention the questions are:

First—What individual is to get the job?

Second—What, if anything, will Roosevelt let us do? If we won't take him?

Third—Is there even a faint possibility that the Prohibitionists might persuade Bryan to take their nomination—thus weakening Wilson with a prohibition cold shower bath, as the Republicans will probably be weakened with the blood and thunder and red hot steel of Roosevelt's third party?

The cheerful spot in the rainy day has been the Hughes "I love that flag" speech. Roosevelt and his friends are furiously indignant over this. Their manner says to Hughes: "Drop that flag, what do you know about patriotism?"

First they wanted him to say that he WAS a good American and now when he tells the little girls that he loves every thread in the old flag they angrily accuse him of "stealing Roosevelt's stuff."

If George Cohan should hear some rival singing his "You're a grand old flag" song he could not be more indignant than Roosevelt when Hughes makes his little flag speech.

The greatest nation on earth goes about its most important task without method, fixity of purpose or careful planning.

When historians write about this particular stage of the growth of the popular dinosaur they need not call it "Failure of government by the people."

It is dismal, pitiful failure on the part of the few who have taken into their own hands the power that ought to be the people's and do not know what to do with that power or how to use it.

The khaki-clad imitation of a cavalryman appears among these gentlemen of the counting house, stamps his feet, shows his teeth, and they are panic stricken.

That is the Republican convention of 1916.

A Vaccine for Whooping Cough

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART TWO

ABOUT the best that can be done is to bring pressure to bear from both ends, to warn parents of children with the whooping cough and to see that the school doctor or nurse warns the children themselves of the serious nature and danger of spreading the disease, and and that if their children appear at school or in any public place or private house other than their own, the parents will be subject to prosecution and fined.

Secondly to warn parents, teachers and children who have not contracted the disease, that the great danger is in personal contact, such as swapping pencils, or sticks of candy, or chewing gum, with the children who have it, and particularly of being coughed upon by a child in one of its paroxysms. If the affected children are kept away from school and not allowed to go into private houses and yards, as fortunately very few infections are caught in the open air and these only by direct personal contact, a great deal can be done to lessen the spread of the disease.

Our greatest hope and prayer, however, is for the discovery of a vaccine against the spread of the disease. And when some three or four years ago, after decades of fruitless search and experimentation, two French bacteriologists announced the discovery of the germ of whooping cough, it looked as if our prayers were about to be answered.

This wretched little bug, called from its discoverers the Bordet-Gengou bacillus, has its special habitat and spawning ground just under the mucous lining of the windpipe in its upper part, close below the larynx or voice organ. And the irritation which it produces by growing there in the most ticklish part of the throat explains the fury of the paroxysms of coughing. Cultures were at once made and vaccines of dead germs prepared, and while it is difficult to speak with positiveness, because whooping cough is an extremely "scattering" disease, taking one and leaving another, and seldom seizing more than about one in three of the children exposed to it, yet some very encouraging results in the way of prevention have already been secured.

One of the largest groups, covering nearly 1,500 children, was in New York city, in the children's hospitals under the direction of the Board of Health last year. Nearly 1,000 children who had been exposed to the disease were given the vaccine, and their history followed up and compared with about the same number of exposed children, whose parents either refuse vaccination or for other reasons did not receive it.

The number of vaccinated children who caught the disease was only about one-fourth as large as of the unvaccinated children who had been exposed to it. If we continue to get results like this the prospects look bright for stopping this great unnecessary suffering and pitiable slaughter of the innocents, and saving at least two-thirds of whooping cough's yearly child-tribute of over 10,000 victims.
